The Bicentennial of the United States of America American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, 1977 Residential Construction Trends in America's Metropolitan Regions John V. Thomas, 2010-11 Across the country many urban neighborhoods are experiencing dramatic transformations Parking lots underused commercial properties and former industrial sites are being replaced by condos and apartments But do such examples add up to a fundamental shift in the geography of residential construction To answer this question the author examined residential bldg permits in the 50 largest metro regions The goal was to clarify 1 if there has been a shift toward redevelop and 2 in which regions the shift has been most significant In more than half of the largest metro areas urban communities have dramatically increased their share of new residential bldg permits The central city has more than doubled its share in 15 regions Charts America's Trails, 1995
