

Unit 5: Coastal Environments

Coast: a narrow contact zone between land and sea

It is dynamic so constantly changing due to effects of air, land and marine processes

Waves: (main forces changing shape of any coastline) caused by the friction of the wind on the surface of the water.

Height and strength of waves depends on:

- The speed of wind
- The length of time the wind blows for
- The length of water the wind blows over

Fetch- the distance (length of water) the wind blows over

Stronger the wind, larger the wave

Greater the fetch, larger the wave

E.g. waves along north coast large as wind comes from Atlantic (America)

How do waves interact with coastline?

- As wave approaches coast, its lower section is slowed more than the upper sections due to friction from seabed or beach
- Upper section of wave reaches a crest and topples over (breaks) and either hits a cliff or surges up the beach.

Swash: movement of the wave up the beach

Backwash: as the waves retreats back down the beach.

The dynamic nature of coast is due to two types of wave: destructive and conservative

Destructive waves: plunging waves which occur mostly on steeply sloping beaches and then erode the beach because the backwash is stronger than the wash (erosive coastline)

- Occur on steeply sloping beaches
- High, steep waves so when they break the water crashes down on the beach
- They arrive at rate of 13-15 per minute
- Stronger backwash than swash, so pull material from beach and erode coastline, changing its dynamic shape
- Dangerous because can arrive very quickly and one after other, the backwash has to slow under incoming wave. This flow is called a rip current and can drag swimmers out to sea.

Constructive waves: spilling waves which occur mostly on sloping beaches and deposit material further up the beach because the swash is stronger than the backwash.

- Occur on gently sloping beaches.
- Low waves so when they break the water runs gently up the beach
- Arrive at rate 6-8 per minute
- Have strong swash, so push material up beach
- As swash is stronger than the backwash, material is carried onto land and deposited, changing dynamic shape

Coastal processes

Just like a river, sea erodes, transports and deposits material. Unlike river, sea has much greater force and can move material all round the globe.

Coastal erosion (CSE)

Corrosion/abrasion - the force of moving water in the sea throws stones and other eroded particles that it is carrying against the coastline and cliffs, which dislodges one material.

Attrition- particles already eroded from rocks and cliffs that are transported by the sea hit against each other, reducing their size and making them more rounded

Solution/ corrosion- seawater contains salts and acids that can dissolve away the rocks from the seabed or cliffs. This process is most effective on limestone coasts when calcium carbonate is dissolve and can create spectacular caves.

Hydraulic pressure (action)– waves force water and air into cracks in the rock. The parcels of air can be compressed by surging water, then expand explosively, breaking up the rock in the cliffs.

Control Temperature

Just like rivers, sea transports material (saltation, suspension, solution, traction)

Longshore drift- the movement of material along the beach in a zigzag route

Sealed NOT river bed
