Coevolution Genes Culture And Human Diversity:

Coevolution William H. Durham, 1991 Charles Darwin's On the Origins of Species had two principal goals to show that species had not been separately created and to show that natural selection had been the main force behind their proliferation and descent from common ancestors In Coevolution the author proposes a powerful new theory of cultural evolution that is of the descent with modification of the shared conceptual systems we call cultures that is parallel in many ways to Darwin's theory of organic evolution The author suggests that a process of cultural selection or preservation by preference driven chiefly by choice or imposition depending on the circumstances has been the main but not exclusive force of cultural change He shows that this process gives rise to five major patterns or modes in which cultural change is at odds with genetic change Each of the five modes is discussed in some detail and its existence confirmed through one or more case studies chosen for their heuristic value the robustness of their data and their broader implications But Coevolution predicts not simply the existence of the five modes of gene culture relations it also predicts their relative importance in the ongoing dynamics of cultural change in particular cases The case studies themselves are lucid and innovative reexaminations of an array of oft pondered anthropological topics plural marriage sickle cell anemia basic color terms adult lactose absorption incest taboos headhunting and cannibalism In a general case the author's goal is to demonstrate that an evolutionary analysis of both genes and culture has much to contribute to our understanding of human diversity particularly behavioral diversity and thus to the resolution of age old questions about nature and nurture genes and culture

Coevolution William H. Durham, 1991 Presents the theory that cultural change is a process of selection based on choice or imposition and examines the range of relationships between genes and culture in human populations Five patterns of relationship between genes and culture are discussed and their implications are explored in case studies of sickle cell anemia in West Africa marriage in Tibet adult lactose absorption evolution of incest taboos and cultural reason and cannibalism Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Coevolution William H. Durham, 1991 Explaining Human Diversity Carles Salazar, 2018-07-04 Why are humans so different from each other and what makes the human species so different from all other living organisms This introductory book provides a concise and accessible account of human diversity of its causes and the ways in which anthropologists go about trying to make sense of it Carles Salazar offers students a thoroughly integrated view by bringing together biological and sociocultural anthropology and including perspectives from evolutionary biology and psychology

The Origins of Music Nils L. Wallin, Bjorn Merker, Steven Brown, 2001-07-27 The book can be viewed as representing the birth of evolutionary biomusicology What biological and cognitive forces have shaped humankind's musical behavior and the rich global repertoire of musical structures What is music for and why does every human culture have it What are the universal features of music and musical behavior across cultures In this groundbreaking book musicologists biologists anthropologists archaeologists psychologists neuroscientists ethologists and linguists come together for the first time to examine these and related issues The book can be viewed as representing the birth of evolutionary biomusicology the study of which will contribute greatly to our understanding of the evolutionary precursors of human music the evolution of the hominid vocal tract localization of brain function the structure of acoustic communication signals symbolic gesture emotional manipulation through sound self expression creativity the human affinity for the spiritual and the human attachment to music itself Contributors Simha Arom Derek Bickerton Steven Brown Ellen Dissanayake Dean Falk David W Frayer Walter Freeman Thomas Geissmann Marc D Hauser Michel Imberty Harry Jerison Drago Kunej Fran ois Bernard M che Peter Marler Bj rn Merker Geoffrey Miller Jean Molino Bruno Nettl Chris Nicolay Katharine Payne Bruce Richman Peter J B Slater Peter Todd Sandra Trehub Ivan Turk Maria Ujhelyi Nils L Wallin Carol Whaling

Bioregionalism and Global Ethics Richard Evanoff,2010-09-13 While a number of schools of environmental thought including social ecology ecofeminism ecological Marxism ecoanarchism and bioregionalism have attempted to link social issues to a concern for the environment environmental ethics as an academic discipline has tended to focus more narrowly on ethics related either to changes in personal values or behavior or to the various ways in which nature might be valued What is lacking is a framework in which individual social and environmental concerns can be looked at not in isolation from each other but rather in terms of their interrelationships In this book Evanoff aims to develop just such a philosophical framework one in which ethical questions related to interactions between self society and nature can be discussed across disciplines and from a variety of different perspectives The central problem his study investigates is the extent to which a dichotomized view of the relationship between nature and culture perpetuated in ongoing debates over anthropocentric vs ecocentric approaches to environmental ethics might be overcome through the adoption of a transactional perspective which offers a more dynamic and coevolutionary understanding of how humans interact with their natural environments Unlike anthropocentric approaches to environmental ethics which often privilege human concerns over ecological preservation and some ecocentric approaches which place more emphasis on preserving natural environments than on meeting human needs a transactional approach attempts to create more symbiotic and less conflictual modes of interaction between human cultures and natural environments which allow for the flourishing of both

Rebuilding the Matrix Denis Alexander,2003 Fresh thinking and new insights on the nature of science in relation to faith showing particularly that 1 true science does not need to be and in fact is not hostile to religious faith and 2 evangelical Christians in general need not be either fearful of nor hostile toward scientific endeavor

Culture and the Course of Human Evolution Gary Tomlinson,2018-05-09 The rapid evolutionary development of modern Homo sapiens over the past 200 000 years is a topic of fevered interest in numerous disciplines How did humans while undergoing few physical changes from their first arrival so quickly develop the capacities to transform their world Gary Tomlinson s Culture and the Course of Human Evolution is aimed at both scientists and humanists and it makes the case that neither side alone can answer the most important questions about our origins Tomlinson offers a new model for understanding this period in our emergence one based on analysis of advancing human cultures in an evolution that was simultaneously cultural and biological a biocultural evolution He places front and center the emergence of culture and the human capacities to create it in a fashion that expands the conceptual framework of recent evolutionary theory His wide ranging vision encompasses arguments on the development of music modern technology and metaphysics At the heart of these developments he shows are transformations in our species particular knack for signmaking With its innovative synthesis of humanistic and scientific ideas this book will be an essential text Darwin and International Relations Bradley A. Thayer,2014-07-11 Pathbreaking and controversial Darwin and International Relations offers the first comprehensive analysis of international affairs of state through the lens of evolutionary theory Bradley A Thayer provides a new method for investigating and explaining human and state behavior while generating insights into the origins of human and animal warfare ethnic conflict and the influence of disease on international relations Using ethnological and statistical studies of warfare among tribal societies Thayer argues that humans wage war for reasons predicted by evolutionary theory to gain and protect vital resources but also for the physically and emotionally stimulating effects of combat Thayer demonstrates that an evolutionary understanding of disease will become a more important part of the study of international relations as new strains of diseases emerge and advances in genetics make biological warfare a more effective weapon for states and terrorists He also explains the deep causes of ethnic conflict by illuminating how xenophobia and ethnocentrism evolved in humans He notes that these behaviors once contributed to our ancestors success in radically different environments but they remain a part of us Darwin and International Relations makes a major contribution to our understanding of human history and the future of international relations Site of the Social Theodore R.
