Country Living ,2005 Risky business: Uptake and implementation of sustainability standards and certification schemes in the Indonesian palm oil sector Sophia M Gnych, Godwin Limberg, Gary Paoli, 2015-11-12 Evolving international sustainability norms demand greater environmental and social responsibility from business across global commodity chains from countries of origin to countries of consumption Conventional command and control regulation has had limited success in addressing negative environmental and social impacts As a result advocacy groups and NGOs have championed a diversity of market based and multi stakeholder governance approaches aimed at shifting the private sector towards delivering more sustainable business models Multiple non state market driven social and environmental standards have emerged for palm oil Through interviews with growers and key stakeholders in the Indonesian palm oil industry this occasional paper explores the motivations driving the uptake of sustainability standards as well as the factors supporting and preventing implementation of sustainability standards and asks what model of sustainable oil palm agriculture is ultimately being built Narrative

Progression in the Short Story Michael J. Toolan, 2009 One of our most valuable capacities is our ability partly to predict what will come next in a text But linguistic understanding of this remains very limited especially in genres such as the short story where there is a staging of the clash between predictability and unpredictability This book proposes that a matrix of narrativity furthering textual features is crucial to the reader s forming of expectations about how a literary story will continue to its close Toolan uses corpus linguistic software and methods and stylistic and narratological theory in the course of delineating the matrix of eight parameters that he sees as crucial to creating narrative progression and expectation The book will be of interest to stylisticians narratologists corpus linguists and short story scholars The Woman Fencer Nick Evangelista, Anita Evangelista, 2001 While fencing was once the prerogative of men alone by tradition and by choice fencing has evolved into a sport that is no longer gender exclusive It is a game that may be mastered by anyone Today women play an important and equal role in fencing and yet there has never been a volume specifically addressing the issue of women as fencing entities until now

The Experiences of Ghanaian Live-in Caregivers in the United States Martha

Donkor, 2017-11-15 Using the convergence of the impact of globalization and political turmoil in Ghana on Ghanaian women as a backdrop this book examines the migration of the women to the US and their decisions to care for upper middle class white seniors who elected to stay in their homes to be cared for by private caregivers The book explores the attraction of domestic care work the women s perceptions of their job their relationships with their clients and the dynamics of their relationships with their immediate families and families left behind in Ghana It also analyzes the women s interactions with the immigrant community from their remote work sites The book examines widely held beliefs about domestic work as undervalued under remunerated and relegated to marginalized immigrant women of color While admitting that these problems exist the women whose stories are told in the book did not believe that their brand of care work which they called private practice was undervalued or underpaid They also did not think that racism played a role in the concentration of immigrant women of color in domestic care work as widely believed although again the women admitted that there was racism in American society By doing so the women symbolically placed themselves beyond the institutional barriers that constrain the lives of women of color in American society And while it addresses common themes like exploitation abuse restriction of movement etc that other studies of immigrant live in caregiving address this book stands out in two major ways First is its truly transnational character It links the women s background in Ghana to their immigration history and how these two influenced their choice as well as perceptions of care work and then loops their experience of care work back to expectations in Ghana Second the book validates the women s voices as a product of their cultural background thus making the case that the women s choices and experiences were informed by conditions in the US and the cultural baggage the women brought with them The book argues that private care work satisfied women s financial expectations and with that leverage in their families
