Analyses on Health Status and Care Needs among Older Adults Jian Sun, Hongye Luo, Yi Zeng, 2025-09-12 Globally a shift in population structures and disease spectrum is inevitable The latest global burden of disease study revealed that the average healthy life expectancy has steadily increased from 1990 to 2019 worldwide However there is a concerning trend in which the growth in healthy life expectancy is lower than the growth in life expectancy in 198 out of 204 countries evaluated This implies that people spend more time in sub optimal health despite living longer Moreover non communicable diseases contribute an increasingly significant portion of the disease burden in low and middle income countries growing from one third to almost two thirds from 1990 to 2019 This mainly results from preventable risk factors It is important to approach aging with a positive outlook This entails guaranteeing sufficient medical care and proactively managing health issues in older adults Importantly since several diseases are often irreversible prevention is key Social and psychological factors due to their nebulous harm have struggled to gain attention over a long period We should aim to make the additional years gained during old age as healthful as those in other life stages

Innovations in Older Adult Care and Health Service Management: A Focus on the Asia-Pacific Region Madhan Balasubramanian, Angie Shafei, Zhanming Liang, 2024-02-14 Population aging is a consistent global demographic trend The growth in both the size and proportion of older adults has threatened the sustainability of health systems in meeting healthcare needs of the population Countries in the Asia Pacific Region may face even more complex health system challenges due to the diversity in culture management and leadership styles composition of health service provision investment in research infrastructure and innovation adaptation data availability and gaps in information technology The Asia Pacific is home to more than half of the world's population and comprises countries across five Asia Pacific subregions East and North East Asia North and Central Asia Pacific South East Asia South and South West Asia The economies are diverse including six high income countries such as Australia Brunei Japan New Zealand South Korea and Singapore low income countries Nepal and North Korea and middle income countries The region also includes some of the fastest growing economies in the world including China India Malaysia Thailand Indonesia and the Philippines
