Wilson charted a new course and decided to enter politics through the teaching field Following a short stint at the newly formed Bryn Mawr College and Wesleyan University he was made professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton There he remained for twenty two years seemingly entrenched in the academic atmosphere He produced several brilliantly written books and articles but his political career seemed farther away than ever Suddenly in 1902 Wilson was named president of Princeton and startled New Jersey political circles by completely overhauling the entire university both intellectually and socially Events moved at a rapid pace Wilson was elected Governor of New Jersey in 1910 and in 1913 twenty eighth President of the United States Citizens of this country saw their new President develop from a militant neutralist to an internationalist his new beliefs culminating in the League of Nations from a strong pacifist to a man who bowed to the necessity of declaring war against Germany He was an intellectual who took decisive action when the occasion warranted and who above all fought for his own beliefs American Lutheran ,1918
