Environmental Change and Human Development Chris Barrow, 2014-04-04 Environmental Change and Human Development focuses on environmental change and human fortunes While there is a large and rapidly expanding literature dealing with how people affect the environment less attention has been given in recent years to how the environment shapes human development In an ever more crowded world there is a need for anticipatory environmental management and a crucial input to this is consideration of the interaction between environment and humans The environment is not as stable benign or controllable as people like to think The world population is vastly larger than it has ever been and is still growing and humans increasingly upset nature through pollution and other activities While modern communications may help environmental managers rapid travel also increases the dispersal of diseases and pests Technological advance and social development is not all beneficial some innovations have the effect of making people more vulnerable to disruption by natural disaster and citizens are often less able to cope with changed conditions than people were in the past Environmental Change and Human Development addresses key issues such as soil degradation natural climatic variations and volcanic activity and provides geography and earth sciences students with an essential introduction to the major debates surrounding this topic

Climate Change and the Law Erkki J. Hollo, Kati Kulovesi, Michael Mehling, 2012-12-04 Climate Change and the Law is the first scholarly effort to systematically address doctrinal issues related to climate law as an emergent legal discipline It assembles some of the most recognized experts in the field to identify relevant trends and common themes from a variety of geographic and professional perspectives In a remarkably short time span climate change has become deeply embedded in important areas of the law As a global challenge calling for collective action climate change has elicited substantial rulemaking at the international plane percolating through the broader legal system to the regional national and local levels More than other areas of law the normative and practical framework dedicated to climate change has embraced new instruments and softened traditional boundaries between formal and informal public and private substantive and procedural so ubiquitous is the reach of relevant rules nowadays that scholars routinely devote attention to the intersection of climate change and more established fields of legal study such as international trade law Climate Change and the Law explores the rich diversity of international regional national sub national and transnational legal responses to climate change Is climate law emerging as a new legal discipline If so what shared objectives and concepts define it How does climate law relate to other areas of law Such questions lie at the heart of this new book whose thirty chapters cover doctrinal questions as well as a range of thematic and regional case studies As Christiana Figueres Executive Secretary of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change UNFCCC states in her preface these chapters collectively provide a review of the emergence of a new discipline its core principles and legal techniques and its relationship and potential interaction with other disciplines
