

Chapter 2

Supply and Demand Analysis

Solutions to Review Questions

1. Explain why a situation of excess demand will result in an increase in the market price. Why will a situation of excess supply result in a decrease in the market price?

Excess demand occurs when price falls below the equilibrium price. In this situation, consumers are demanding a higher quantity than is being made available by suppliers. This creates pressure for the price to increase – sellers can ask for higher prices and still find buyers, and buyers offer higher prices to secure the units they want. As the price increases, quantity demanded will fall as quantity supplied increases returning the market to equilibrium.

Excess supply occurs when price is above the equilibrium price. Suppliers have made available more units than consumers are willing to purchase at the high price. This creates pressure for the price to decrease – buyers can get away with paying less because sellers are happy to find a buyer at all, and sellers are willing to sell for less wanting to make sure they find a buyer. As the price decreases, the quantity demanded will go up while at the same time the quantity supplied will decrease, returning the market to equilibrium.

2. Use supply and demand curves to illustrate the impact of the following events on the market for coffee:

- The price of tea goes up by 100 percent.
- A study is released that links consumption of caffeine to the incidence of cancer.
- A frost kills half of the Colombian coffee bean crop.
- The price of styrofoam coffee cups goes up by 300 percent.

a) An increase in the price of a substitute, such as tea, will increase demand for coffee, raising the market equilibrium price and quantity. How much demand for coffee increases, depends on how sensitive coffee demand is to the price of tea (cross-price elasticity).
