This collection of fresh incisive scholarship by some of the leading business historians critically examines the nature of economic recovery in Britain in recent years. Covering the key issues for business history in this period, the book confronts the traditional literature on conclusions of relative decline and monocausal simplistic explanations. It provides an impressive range of studies forming a platform for a new debate on the nature of British business in the 20th century. Themes include productivity, management, research and development, marketing, regional clusters and networks, industrial policy, the use of technology and gender. Sector studies include newer post-war hopefuls and successes including aerospace, IT, retail, banking, overseas investment, the creative industries. The book demonstrates that our understanding of the historic strengths and weaknesses of business in Britain and the shifting balance between sectors of the economy has until now been poorly understood and that British business history needs a fundamental reappraisal.
