Climate Change and Museum Futures Fiona Cameron, Brett Neilson, 2014-12-05 Climate change is a complex and dynamic environmental cultural and political phenomenon that is reshaping our relationship to nature Climate change is a global force with global impacts Viable solutions on what to do must involve dialogues and decision making with many agencies stakeholder groups and communities crossing all sectors and scales Current policy approaches are inadequate and finding a consensus on how to reduce levels of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere through international protocols has proven difficult Gaps between science and society limit government and industry capacity to engage with communities to broker innovative solutions to climate change Drawing on leading edge research and creative programming initiatives this collection details the important roles and agencies that cultural institutions in particular natural history and science museums and science centres can play within these gaps as resources catalysts and change agents in climate change debates and decision making processes as unique public and trans national spaces where diverse stakeholders government and communities can meet where knowledge can be mediated competing discourses and agendas tabled and debated and where both individual and collective action might be activated Museum Practices and the Posthumanities Fiona R. Cameron, 2023-10-24 This book critiques modern museologies and curatorial practices that have been complicit in emerging existential crises It confidently presents novel more than human curatorial visions methods frameworks policies and museologies radically refiguring the epistemological foundations of curatorial museological thinking and practice for a habitable planet Modern curatorial and museological practices are dominated by modern humanism in which capital growth social technological advancement hubris extraction species logics and colonial domination predominate often without reflection While history science and technology museums and their engagement with non human worlds have always been ecological as an empirical reality the human centred frameworks and forms of human agency that institutions deploy tend to be non cognizant of this reality Museum Practices and the Posthumanities Curating for Planetary Habitability reveals how these practices are ill equipped to deal with the contemporary world of rapid digital transformations post Covid living climate change and its impacts among other societal changes and it shows how museums might best meet these challenges by thinking with and in more than human worlds This book is aimed at museological scholars and museum professionals and it will provide them with the inspiration to conduct research on and curate from a different ecological reference point to promote a world good enough for all things to thrive in radical co existence

Museums, Immigrants, and Social Justice Sophia Labadi, 2017-09-18 This interdisciplinary book argues that museums can offer a powerful and often overlooked arena for both exploring and acting upon the interrelated issues of immigration and social justice Based on three in depth European case studies spanning France Denmark and the UK the research examines programs developed by leading museums to address cultural economic social and political inequalities Where previous studies on museums and immigration have focused primarily on issues of cultural inequalities in collection and interpretation Museums Immigrants and Social Justice adopts a more comprehensive focus that extends beyond the exhibition hall to examine the full range of programs developed by museums to address the of cultural economic social and political inequalities facing immigrants Museums Immigrants and Social Justice offers compelling insights on the ability of museums to offer positive contributions to the issues surrounding immigration and social justice at a time when both are pressing issues in Europe It will be of interest to scholars and students of museum studies migration studies sociology human geography and politics Climate Change and Museum Futures Fiona Cameron,Brett Neilson,2014-12-05 Climate change is a complex and dynamic environmental cultural and political phenomenon that is reshaping our relationship to nature Climate change is a global force with global impacts Viable solutions on what to do must involve dialogues and decision making with many agencies stakeholder groups and communities crossing all sectors and scales Current policy approaches are inadequate and finding a consensus on how to reduce levels of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere through international protocols has proven difficult Gaps between science and society limit government and industry capacity to engage with communities to broker innovative solutions to climate change Drawing on leading edge research and creative programming initiatives this collection details the important roles and agencies that cultural institutions in particular natural history and science museums and science centres can play within these gaps as resources catalysts and change agents in climate change debates and decision making processes as unique public and trans national spaces where diverse stakeholders government and communities can meet where knowledge can be mediated competing discourses and agendas tabled and debated and where both individual and collective action might be activated Curating the Future Jennifer Newell,Libby Robin,Kirsten Wehner,2016-08-12 Curating the Future Museums Communities and Climate Change explores the way museums tackle the broad global issue of climate change It explores the power of real objects and collections to stir hearts and minds to engage communities affected by change Museums work through exhibitions events and specific collection projects to reach different communities in different ways The book emphasises the moral responsibilities of museums to address climate change not just by communicating science but also by enabling people already affected by changes to find their own ways of living with global warming There are museums of natural history of art and of social history The focus of this book is the museum communities like those in the Pacific who have to find new ways to express their culture in a new place The book considers how collections in museums might help future generations stay in touch with their culture even where they have left their place It asks what should the people of the present be collecting for museums in a climate changed future The book is rich with practical museum experience and detailed projects as well as critical and philosophical analyses about where a museum can intervene to speak to this great conundrum of our times Curating the Future is essential reading for all those working in museums and grappling with how to talk about climate change It also has academic applications in courses of museology and museum studies cultural studies heritage studies digital humanities design anthropology and environmental humanities Addressing the Challenges in Communicating Climate Change Across Various Audiences Walter Leal Filho,Bettina Lackner, Henry McGhie,2018-10-02 This book offers a concrete contribution towards a better understanding of climate change communication It ultimately helps to catalyse the sort of cross sectoral action needed to address the phenomenon of climate change and its many consequences There is a perceived need to foster a better understanding of what climate change is and to identify approaches processes methods and tools which may help to better communicate it There is also a need for successful examples showing how communication can take place across society and stakeholders Addressing the challenges in communicating to various audiences and providing a platform for reflections it showcases lessons learnt from research field projects and best practices in various settings in various different countries The acquired knowledge can be adapted and applied to other situations
