

OPEC: history, structure, functions

OPEC, the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, is an international organization uniting most of the world's petroleum exporting countries

General functions

Coordinates and unifies petroleum policies

Sets oil production quotas

- OPEC was created at the Baghdad Conference on September 10–14, 1960, by five petroleum exporting countries
- OPEC was registered at the UN as a legally competent international organization in 1962
- OPEC currently consists of 13 countries
- OPEC member countries account for 40% of the world's oil production
- The organization was originally based in Geneva, Switzerland, but moved to Vienna, Austria, on September 1, 1965

- Full members are the Founding Members, as well as those countries whose application for membership has been accepted by the OPEC Conference
- Associate members are countries that are not Full Members but under special circumstances may participate in OPEC conferences

OPEC Membership qualifications

Any country with a substantial net export of crude petroleum, which has fundamentally similar interests to those of the member countries, may become a full member of the organization, if accepted by a majority of three-fourths of all full members, including the concurrent vote of all Founding Members

Organizational structure

1 OPEC Conference

The Conference formulates the organization's general policy, determines the disposition of reports and recommendations submitted by the Board of Governors and the OPEC budget. It also elects the OPEC President, confirms the appointment of members of the Board of Governors, the Secretary General and other organizational heads

2 The Board of Governors

The Board of Governors is composed by the Conference. Each OPEC member country is represented by a Governor on the Board who serves a two-year term. The Board's functions are to direct the management of OPEC affairs and the implementation of the Conference's decisions, to draw up the budget and to draft Conference decisions

3 The Ministerial Monitoring Committee

Monitors the oil market and advises the Conference on possible OPEC measures

4 The Economic Commission Board

The Economic Commission Board assists the Organization in promoting stability in the international oil market and in maintaining fair prices, it also monitors energy markets

5 The Secretary General

The Secretary General performs executive functions and is elected by the Conference for a three-year term, which term of office may be renewed once for the same period of time

6 The General Secretariat

The General Secretariat is responsible for executing OPEC functions
