The Qiaopi Trade and Transnational Networks in the Chinese Diaspora Gregor Benton, Hong Liu, Huimei

Zhang, 2018-05-03 Originating in the 1820s and used for 150 years thereafter qiaopi is the name given in Chinese to letters written home by Chinese emigrants to accompany remittances. Their key function was to preserve family ties. Although such correspondence focused principally on the provision of economic support, the qiaopi also touched on cultural, political, educational, and gender themes. This book therefore seeks to examine the qiaopi from two interconnected perspectives. One views qiaopi from a political and institutional angle, the other from a financial and social angle. Bringing together the extensive research of a group of international scholars, this multi-authored volume sheds light on the larger significance of the qiaopi for modern China. Taking an empirical evidence-driven approach, the contributors employ a wide range of primary sources in both Chinese and English and relate their findings to scholarship in both the Chinese-speaking world and in non-Chinese interdisciplinary fields. In so doing, this book helps to bridge the gap between Chinese and English-speaking researchers in the field of qiaopi studies. As one of the first books in English on the qiaopi trade and its significance, this book will appeal to students and scholars of Chinese history and Chinese migration, as well as in Migration Studies and Diaspora Studies more generally.

Documentary, World History, and National Power in the PRC Gotelind Mueller, 2013-10-30 Documentaries have recently become a favourite format for Chinese state-directed media to present an officially sanctioned view of history. Indeed, this is not confined to Chinese national history. In stark contrast to the earlier self-centred preoccupation with Chinese history, there has been an upsurge in interest in foreign history with a view to illuminating China's role not only in world history but also on the global stage today and in the future. This book examines three recent Chinese documentary television series which present the officially sanctioned view of the rise of the modern West, the reasons for the end of the Soviet Union, and the legitimisation of the present-day Chinese government via a specific reading of modern Chinese history to argue for a Chinese rise in the future. With a focus on these documentaries, Gotelind Müller discusses how history is presented on screen and explores the function of visual history for memory culture and wider society. Further, this book reveals how the presentation of Chinese and foreign history in a global framework impacts on the officially transmitted views on Self and Other and thus provides a keen insight into how the Chinese themselves regard their global rise. Documentary World History and National Power in the PRC will be welcomed by students and scholars working across a number of fields including Chinese studies, East Asian studies, media studies, television studies, history, and memory studies.

American Political Discourse on China Michelle Murray Yang, 2017-06-14 Despite the U S and China's shared economic and political interests distrust between the nations persists How does the United States rhetorically navigate its relationship with China in the midst of continued distrust This book pursues this question by rhetorically analyzing U S news and political discourse concerning the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games the 2010 U S midterm elections the 2012 U S presidential election and the 2014 2015 Chinese cyber espionage controversy It finds that memory frames of China as the yellow peril and the red menace have combined to construct China as a threatening red peril Red peril characterizations revive and revise yellow peril tropes of China as a moral political economic and military threat by imbuing them with anti communist ideology Tracing the origins functions and implications of the red peril this study illustrates how historical representations of the Chinese threat continue to limit understanding of U S Sino relations by keeping the nations relationship mired in the past

Chinese Student Migration and Selective Citizenship Lisong Liu, 2015-08-20 Since China began its open door and reform policies in 1978 more than three million Chinese students have migrated to study abroad and the United States has been their top destination The recent surge of students following this pattern along with the rising tide of Chinese middle and upper classes emigration out of China have aroused wide public and scholarly attention in both China and the US This book examines the four waves of Chinese student migration to the US since the late 1970s showing how they were shaped by the profound changes in both nations and by US China relations It discusses how student migrants with high socioeconomic status transformed Chinese American communities and challenged American immigration laws and race relations The book suggests that the rise of China has not negated the deeply rooted American dream that has been constantly reinvented in contemporary China It also addresses the theme of selective citizenship a way in which migrants seek to claim their autonomy proposing that this notion captures the selective nature on both ends of the negotiations between nation states and migrants It cautions against a universal or idealized dual citizenship model which has often been celebrated as a reflection of eroding national boundaries under globalization This book draws on a wide variety of sources in Chinese and English as well as extensive fieldwork in both China and the US and its historical perspective sheds new light on contemporary Chinese student migration and post 1965 Chinese American community Bridging the gap between Asian and Asian American studies the book also integrates the studies of migration education and international relations Therefore it will be of interest to students of these fields as well as Chinese history and Asian American history more generally

Ethnic Chinese Entrepreneurship in Malaysia Michael Jakobsen, 2014-11-20 The study of ethnic Chinese in Southeast Asia has a long tradition What is most striking in these studies is just how difficult it is to generalise about this ethnic group in the region Whether or not they have been able to identify as Chinese has to a certain extent depended on different processes of social and political engineering which in turn make them more or less distinct as an ethnic group In the case of Malaysia national political schemes such as the affirmative action policy indirectly force the Malaysian ethnic Chinese to conceive of themselves as a coherent collective and yet when asked Chinese entrepreneurs in the maintain that despite the affirmative action policy ethnicity is not the a defining deciding factor when it comes to identifying business partners This book focuses on the consequences of these kinds of policies in the field of inter ethnic business practices and entrepreneurship in Malaysia within the wider context of the relationship between local national and global markets It focuses on the complexities of inter ethnic relations and in particular the strong economic position of the ethnic Chinese and their impact on the Malaysian economic scene as well as on the wider Southeast Asian region underlining the degree to which inter ethnic relations in Southeast Asia are crucial to understanding the political and economic complexities characteristic of characterizing the region In turn it takes small and medium sized enterprises as case studies and shows how they are being shaped and in return shape the society in which they constitute a part In doing so the book highlights how these companies not only relate to the domestic economy but also cater to the global economy and presents a compelling argument for the introduction of a glocalised perspective in international business studies Ethnic Chinese Entrepreneurship in Malaysia will be welcomed by students and scholars with an interest in Asian studies political economy international business studies inter ethnic relations and diaspora studies Mixed Race Identities in Asia and the Pacific Zarine L. Rocha, 2015-10-08 Mixed race is becoming an important area for research and there is a growing body of work in the North American and British contexts However understandings and experiences of mixed race across different countries and regions are not often explored in significant depth New Zealand and Singapore provide important contexts for investigation as two multicultural yet structurally divergent societies Within these two countries mixed race describes a particularly interesting label for individuals of mixed Chinese and European parentage This book explores the concept of mixed race for people of mixed Chinese and European descent looking at how being Chinese and or European can mean many different things in different contexts By looking at different communities in Singapore and New Zealand it investigates how individuals of mixed heritage fit into or are excluded from these communities Increasingly individuals of mixed ancestry are opting to identify outside of traditionally defined racial categories posing a challenge to systems of racial classification and to sociological understandings of race As case studies Singapore and New Zealand provide key examples of the complex relationship between state categorization and individual identities The book explores the divergences between identity and classification and the ways in which identity labels affect experiences of mixed race in everyday life Personal stories reveal the creative and flexible ways in which people cross boundaries and the everyday negotiations between classification heritage experience and nation in defining identity The study is based on qualitative research including in depth interviews with people of mixed heritage in both countries Filling an important gap in the literature by using an Asia Pacific dimension this study of race and ethnicity will appeal to students and scholars of mixed race studies ethnicity Chinese diaspora and cultural anthropology Chinese Educational Migration and Student-Teacher Mobilities Fred Dervin, 2016-04-04 This collected volume examines the multifaceted contexts and experiences of Chinese students teachers and scholars in Australia Denmark France Japan the UK and the US It can serve both as an introduction to Chinese people s mobility and migration in Higher Education and as a thorough review for more knowledgeable readers Language and Social Change in China Qing Zhang, 2017-09-11 Language and Social Change in China Undoing Commonness through Cosmopolitan Mandarin offers an innovative and authoritative account of the crucial role of language in shaping the sociocultural landscape of contemporary

China Based on a wide range of data collected since the 1990s and grounded in quantitative and discourse analyses of sociolinguistic variation Qing Zhang tracks the emergence of what she terms Cosmopolitan Mandarin as a new stylistic resource for a rising urban elite and a new middle class consumption based lifestyle The book powerfully illuminates that Cosmopolitan Mandarin participates in dismantling the pre reform socialist conformist society by bringing about new social distinctions Rich in cultural and linguistic details the book is the first of its kind to highlight the implications of language change on the social order and cultural life of contemporary China Language and Social Change in China is ideal for students and scholars interested in sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology and Chinese language and society
