Difficult Heritage Summer School

EDITION I

The Difficult Heritage Summer School inaugurates a space for critical knowledge and pedagogy. It takes place in Borgo Rizza, a rural settlement originally built by Italy's fascist regime in the Sicilian countryside, aiming to investigate the afterlife of colonial and fascist architecture.

As an attempt to re-draw the contours of colonial architectural heritage and the narratives built around it, the school raises questions of access, critical re-use and entitlement over that painful and violent heritage.
