Natural Language Processing of Semitic Languages Imed Zitouni,2014-04-22 Research in Natural Language Processing NLP has rapidly advanced in recent years resulting in exciting algorithms for sophisticated processing of text and speech in various languages Much of this work focuses on English in this book we address another group of interesting and challenging languages for NLP research the Semitic languages The Semitic group of languages includes Arabic 206 million native speakers Amharic 27 million Hebrew 7 million Tigrinya 6 7 million Syriac 1 million and Maltese 419 thousand Semitic languages exhibit unique morphological processes challenging syntactic constructions and various other phenomena that are less prevalent in other natural languages These challenges call for unique solutions many of which are described in this book

The 13 chapters presented in this book bring together leading scientists from several universities and research institutes worldwide. While this book devotes some attention to cutting edge algorithms and techniques, its primary purpose is a thorough explication of best practices in the field. Furthermore, every chapter describes how the techniques discussed apply to Semitic languages. The book covers both statistical approaches to NLP, which are dominant across various applications nowadays, and the more traditional rule-based approaches that were proven useful for several other application domains. We hope that this book will provide a one-stop shop for all the requisite background and practical advice when building NLP applications for Semitic languages.

Word Embeddings: Reliability & Semantic Change Johannes Hellrich, 2019-08-15

Word embeddings are a form of distributional semantics increasingly popular for investigating lexical semantic change. However, typical training algorithms are probabilistic, limiting their reliability and the reproducibility of studies. Johannes Hellrich investigated this problem both empirically and theoretically and found some variants of SVD-based algorithms to be unaffected. Furthermore, he created the JeSemE website to make word embedding-based diachronic research more accessible. It provides information on changes in word denotation and emotional connotation in five diachronic corpora. Finally, the author conducted two case studies on the applicability of these methods by investigating the historical understanding of electricity as well as words connected to Romanticism. They showed the high potential of distributional semantics for further applications in the digital humanities.
