Answers to Review Questions

Note: Answers to odd-numbered review questions are found in Appendix D of the textbook.

1. Redundancy is the duplication of data or the storing of the same data in more than one place. Redundancy wastes space, makes the updating of data more cumbersome and time-consuming, and can lead to inconsistencies.
2. The problems, other than redundancy, associated with the nondatabase approach to processing data include difficulties accessing related data, limited security features to protect data from access by unauthorized users, limited ability for multiple users to update the same data at the same time, and size limitations.
3. An entry is a person, place, object, event, or idea for which you want to store and process data. An attribute, which is also called a field or column in many database systems, is a characteristic or property of an entry.
4. A relationship is an association between entities. A one-to-many relationship exists between two entities when each row in the first entity matches many rows in the second entity and each row in the second entity matches only one row in the first entity.
5. A database is a structure that can store information about multiple types of entities, the attributes of those entities, and the relationships among the entities.
6. In a database system, you create a one-to-many relationship by using common columns in the two tables.
7. An E-R diagram represents a database in a visual way by using a rectangle for each entity, using a line to connect two entities that have a relationship, and placing a dot at the end of a line to indicate the "many" part of a one-to-many relationship.
8. A database management system (DBMS) is a program, or a collection of programs, through which users interact with a database.
9. Database design is the process of determining the table structure of the desired database.
10. A form is a screen object used to maintain, view, and print data from a database.

Database System Concepts 8th Edition Solution Manual:

Query Processing in Database Systems W. Kim,D.S. Reiner,Don Batory,2012-12-06 This book is an anthology of the results of research and development in database query processing during the past decade The relational model of data provided tremendous impetus for research into query processing Since a relational query does not specify access paths to the stored data the database management system DBMS must provide an intelligent query processing subsystem which will evaluate a number of potentially efficient strategies for processing the query and select the one that optimizes a given performance measure The degree of sophistication of this subsystem often called the optimizer critically affects the performance of the DBMS Research into query processing thus started has taken off in several directions during the past decade The emergence of research into distributed databases has enormously complicated the tasks of the optimizer In a distributed environment the database may be partitioned into horizontal or vertical fragments of relations Replicas of the fragments may be stored in different sites of a network and even migrate to other sites The measure of performance of a query in a distributed system must include the communication cost between sites To minimize communication costs for queries involving multiple relations across multiple sites optimizers may also have to consider semi join techniques

Kontargyri,2010-03-25 Software testing has been considered so important that organizations can assign teams only for testing activities Testing is an important activity to ensure software quality Tests are usually run several times to certify that code maintenance did not accidentally insert defects into working parts of the software In such situations test teams shall be able to estimate the required effort to execute test cases in its schedules and to request more resources or negotiate deadlines when necessary When regarding model based testing approaches that we use in our documented Integrated and Optimized Software Testing methodology IOSTP 1 4 a high number of test cases can be automatically generated As team resources are limited it may be not practical to execute all generated test cases Their complexity usually determines the effort required to execute them and it can be used for planning test resources and test suites Several software development estimation models have been proposed over the years However these models do not estimate the effort for executing a given test suite since their estimations are based on software development complexity instead of its test planning test case design and test execution complexity According to our reading of the literature e g 5 14 best practices in model based effort estimation include Local calibration or LC i e using local data to set two special tuning parameters Stratification i e given a database of past projects and a current project to be estimated restrict local calibration to just those records from similar projects Resources in Education ,1994 Intelligent Information and Database Systems Ngoc-Thanh
