analysis to understand how the Sephardic Jews of Livorno Tuscany traded in regions near and far in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Francesca Trivellato tests assumptions about ethnic and religious trading diasporas and networks of exchange and trust Her extensive research in international archives including a vast cache of merchants letters written between 1704 and 1746 reveals a more nuanced view of the business relations between Jews and non Jews across the Mediterranean Atlantic Europe and the Indian Ocean than ever before The book argues that cross cultural trade was predicated on and generated familiarity among strangers but could coexist easily with religious prejudice It analyzes instances in which business cooperation among coreligionists and between strangers relied on language customary norms and social networks more than the progressive rise of state and legal institutions The Russian Pink Matthew
