Food systems for an urbanizing world Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, World Bank Group, 2018-08-29 Food Systems for an Urbanizing World is a joint report prepared by the World Bank and FAO It aims to stimulate discussion and suggest pathways to support local and national governments and civil society and private sector actors in their efforts to improve the performance and capacity of food systems The report describes the diversity and ever changing nature of food systems with interlinked traditional modern and informal channels that respond to different market segments and different consumer preferences It also underscores the importance of targeting support to the type of city and food system The task is not an easy one Data are weak and empirical analysis is weaker As cities engagement in urban food issues is relatively new the institutions governance mechanisms and capacities needed for effective design implementation and delivery of this agenda must be strengthened Finding effective ways to prioritize mobilize and coordinate contributions from multiple sectors will be essential for achieving food system goals

The Sociology of Food and Agriculture Michael Carolan, 2016-02-12 In this second edition of The Sociology of Food and Agriculture students are provided with a substantially revised and updated introductory text to this emergent field The book begins with the recent development of agriculture under capitalism and neo liberal regimes and the transformation of farming and peasant agriculture from a small scale family run way of life to a globalized system Topics such as the global hunger and obesity challenges GM foods and international trade and subsidies are assessed as part of the world food economy The final section concentrates on themes of sustainability food security and food sovereignty The book concludes on a positive note examining alternative agri food movements aimed at changing foodscapes at levels from the local to the global With increased coverage of the financialization of food food and culture gender ethnicity and justice food security and food sovereignty the book is perfect for students with little or no background in sociology and is also suitable for more advanced courses as a comprehensive primer All chapters include learning objectives suggested discussion questions and recommendations for further reading to aid student learning

Integrating Food into Urban Planning Yves Cabannes, Cecilia Marocchino, 2018-11-22 The integration of food into urban planning is a crucial and emerging topic Urban planners alongside the local and regional authorities that have traditionally been less engaged in food related issues are now asked to take a central and active part in understanding how food is produced processed packaged transported marketed consumed disposed of and recycled in our cities While there is a growing body of literature on the topic the issue of planning cities in such a way they will increase food security and nutrition not only for the affluent sections of society but primarily for the poor is much less discussed and much less informed by practices This volume a collaboration between the Bartlett Development Planning Unit at UCL and the Food Agricultural Organisation aims to fill this gap by putting more than 20 city based experiences in perspective including studies from Toronto New York City Portland and Providence in North America Milan in Europe and Cape Town in Africa Belo Horizonte and Lima in South America and in Asia Bangkok and Tokyo By studying and comparing cities of different sizes from both the Global North and South in developed and developing regions the contributors collectively argue for the importance and circulation of global knowledge rooted in local food planning practices programmes and policies

Community Food Initiatives Oona Morrow, Esther Veen, Stefan Wahlen, 2023-06-22 This book examines a diverse range of community food initiatives in light of their everyday practices innovations and contestations While community food initiatives aim to tackle issues like food security food waste or food poverty it is a cause for concern for many when they are framed as the next big solution to the problems of the current industrialised food system They have been critiqued for being too neoliberal elitist and localist for not challenging structural inequalities e g racism privilege exclusion colonialism capitalism and for reproducing these inequalities within their own contexts This edited volume examines the everyday realities of community food initiatives focusing on both their hopes and their troubles their limitations and failures but also their best intentions missions and models alongside their capacity to create hope in difficult times The stories presented in this book are grounded in contemporary theoretical debates on neoliberalism diverse economies food justice community and inclusion and social innovation and help to sharpen these as conceptual tools for interrogating community food initiatives as sites of both hope and trouble The novelty of this volume is its focus on the everyday doings of these initiatives in particular places and contexts with different constraints and opportunities This grounded relational and place based approach allows us to move beyond more traditional framings in which community food initiatives are either applauded for their potential or criticized for their limitations It enables researchers and practitioners to explore how community food initiatives can realize their potential for creating alternative food futures and generates innovative pathways for theorising the mutual interplay of food production and consumption This volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of critical food studies food security public health and nutrition as well as human geographers sociologists and anthropologists with an interest in food

Achieving sustainable urban agriculture Prof Johannes S. C. Wiskerke, 2020-02-18 Strong focus on infrastructural requirements for successful urban agriculture such as public policy and planning frameworks business models and social networks Covers developments in key technologies such as rooftop and vertical farming as well as waste management Includes case studies of particular commodities including horticultural produce livestock and forestry

Routledge Handbook of Urban Food Governance Ana Moragues-Faus, Jill K. Clark, Jane Battersby, Anna Davies, 2022-10-20 The Routledge Handbook of Urban Food Governance is the first collection to reflect on and compile the currently dispersed histories concepts and practices involved in the increasingly popular field of urban food governance Unpacking the power of urban food governance and its capacity to affect lives through the transformation of cities and the global food system the Handbook is structured into five parts The first part focuses on histories of urban food governance to trace the historical roots of current dynamics and provide an impetus for the critical lens on urban food governance threaded through the Handbook The second part presents a broad overview of the different frames theories and concepts that have informed urban food governance scholarship Drawing on the previous parts part three engages with the practice of urban food governance by analysing plans policies and programmes implemented in different contexts Part four presents current knowledge on how urban food governance involves different agencies that operate across scales and sectors The final part asks key figures in this field what the future holds for urban food governance in the midst of pressing societal and environmental challenges Containing chapters written by emerging and established scholars as well as practitioners the Handbook provides a state of the art global and diverse examination of the role of cities in delivering sustainable and secure food outcomes as well as providing refreshed theoretical and practical tools to understand and transform urban food governance to enact more sustainable and just futures The Routledge Handbook of Urban Food Governance will be essential reading for students scholars practitioners and policymakers interested in food governance urban studies sustainable food and agriculture and sustainable living more broadly

Food and Nutrition Security in Southern African Cities Bruce Frayne, Jonathan Crush, Cameron McCordic, 2017-12-22 Urban population growth is extremely rapid across Africa and this book places urban food and nutrition security firmly on the development and policy agenda It shows that current efforts to address food poverty in Africa that focus entirely on small scale farmers to the exclusion of broader socio economic and infrastructural approaches are misplaced and will remain largely ineffective in ameliorating food and nutrition insecurity for the majority of Africans Using original data from the African Food Security Urban Network s AFSUN extensive database it is demonstrated that the primary food security challenge for urban households is access to food Already linked into global food systems and value chains Africa s supply of food is not necessarily in jeopardy Rather the widespread poverty and informal urban fabric that characterizes Africa s emerging cities impinge directly on households capacity to access food that is readily available Through the analysis of empirical data collected from 6 500 households in eleven cities in nine countries in Southern Africa the authors identify the complexity of factors and dynamics that create the circumstances of widespread food and nutrition insecurity under which urban citizens live They also provide useful policy approaches to address these conditions that currently thwart the latent development potential of Africa s expanding urban population

Climate Change and Agricultural Development Udaya Sekhar Nagothu, 2016-07-15 Two of the greatest current challenges are climate change and variability and food security Feeding nine billion people by 2050 will require major efforts aimed at climate change adaptation and mitigation One approach to agriculture has recently been captured by the widely adopted term of Climate Smart Agriculture CSA This book not only explains what this entails but also presents practical on the ground studies of practices and innovations in agriculture across a broader spectrum including agroecology and conservation agriculture in less developed countries It is shown that CSA is not a completely new science and a number of its recommended technologies have been used for some time by local farmers all over the world What is relevant and new is the approach to exploit their adaptation and mitigation potential However a major limitation is the lack of evidence based knowledge that is necessary for policy makers to prepare strategies for adaptation and mitigation This book assembles knowledge of CSA agroecology and conservation agriculture and perspectives from different regions of the world to build resilient food systems The first part analyzes the concept opportunities and challenges and provides a global perspective drawing particularly on studies from Africa and Asia The second part of the book showcases results from various studies linked to soil water and crop management measures from an ongoing program in India as well as experiences from other regions The third section assesses the needs for an enabling policy environment mainstreaming gender and some final recommendations for up scaling and or out scaling innovations
