Geographies of Urban Governance Joyeeta Gupta,Karin Pfeffer,Hebe Verrest,Mirjam Ros-Tonen,2015-08-08 With a current population inflow into cities of 200 000 people per day UN Habitat expects that up to 75% of the global population will live in cities by 2050 Influenced by forces of globalization and global change cities and urban life are transforming rapidly impacting human welfare economic development and urban regional landscapes This poses new challenges to urban governance while emerging city networks advancing geo technologies and increasing production of continuous data streams require governance actors to re think and re work conventional work processes and practices This book has been written to enhance our understanding of how governance can contribute to the development of just and resilient cities in a context of rapid urban transformations It examines current governance patterns from a geographical and inclusive development perspective emphasizing the importance of place space scale and human environment interactions and paying attention to contemporary processes of participation networking and spatialized digitization The challenge we are facing is to turn future cities into inclusive cities that are diverse but just and within their ecological limits We believe that the state of the art overview of topical discussions on governance theories instruments methods and practices presented in this book provides a basis for understanding and analyzing these challenges The Power of Cities in Global Climate Politics Craig A. Johnson, 2017-11-06 There is now a palpable sense of optimism about the role of cities and transnational city networks in global climate governance Yet amidst the euphoria there is also a sense that the power that has been ascribed to and frequently assumed by cities has been overstated that the power of cities and city networks to make a difference in global climate politics is not what it appears This book explores the implications of city engagement in global climate politics outlining a theoretical framework that can be used to understand the power of cities in relation to transnational city networks multinational corporations and nation states The book will be of interest to students and scholars of transnational governance global environmental politics and climate change Governing Climate Change

Harriet Bulkeley, Peter Newell, 2023-05-05 This fully revised and expanded new edition provides a short and accessible introduction to how climate change is governed by an increasingly diverse range of actors from civil society and business actors to multilateral development banks donors and cities The issue of global climate change has risen to the top of the international political agenda Despite ongoing contestation about the science informing policy the economic costs of action and the allocation of responsibility for addressing the issue within and between nations it is clear that climate change will continue to be one of the most pressing and challenging issues facing humanity for many years to come The book Evaluates the role of states and non state actors in governing climate change at multiple levels of political organization local national and global Provides a discussion of theoretical debates on climate change governance moving beyond analytical approaches focused solely on nation states and international negotiations Examines a range of key topical issues in the politics of climate change Includes multiple examples from both the north and the global south Providing an inter disciplinary perspective drawing on geography politics international relations and development studies this book is essential reading for all those concerned not only with the climate governance but with the future of the environment in general Global
