50. Abstracts require authors to summarize the objectives, methods, results, and conclusions of their studies in a brief, concise manner. Abstracts are typically 100-200 words long and are often the first part of a paper that is read by reviewers and readers. They provide a quick overview of the study and help to determine if the full paper is worth reading. Abstracts should be written clearly and concisely, using simple language and avoiding jargon. They should also include key words that will help with searching and indexing the paper.
