Science and Christianity Tim Reddish, 2016-08-15 Too often conversations on Science and Christianity skate over much deeper assumptions or perceptions on the nature and interpretation of Scripture and the nature of science and of God Instead the rhetoric goes quickly towards contentious issues like evolution global warming or genetic engineering without establishing a framework of mutual understanding Consequently conversations can take place between people who completely misunderstand each other because those foundations have not been clearly articulated In this introductory book you are invited on a journey of discovery one that makes us self aware of our starting assumptions It is only from a framework of critical engagement with both science and the Bible that contemporary issues and the needs of the church and society can be addressed While the Creator is one who brings order this book also reminds us that untamed chaos also has a God ordained place within creation The author explores the element of chance that seems to be at the heart of nature and shows how this can be incorporated constructively within Christian thinking Nature is not mere mechanism and is more open than we might first think This means that miracles are scientifically plausible and prayer can really change things

Mission Shaped by Promise Jukka A. Kääriäinen, 2012-10-03 Utilizing resources from Martin Luther and the Lutheran tradition this study offers an understanding of the gospel as promise as key to addressing the challenge of relating the missio Dei to a generous constructive approach toward the religious other In its construction of a Lutheran missiology it retrieves and reappropriates four resources from the Lutheran tradition the gospel as promise the law gospel distinction a theology of grace as promise of mercy fulfilled and a theology of the cross utilizing the hiddenness of God The law of God as accusing yet webbing humanity to its Creator the gospel as the comforting promise of mercy and the hiddenness of God as mystifying form the overarching framework within which the Lutheran missiology presented here seeks to engage the religious other by dialectically relating gospel proclamation and dialogue Such a view of mission shaped by promise offers the paradox of God being both revealed and hidden in the cross as a distinctive contribution to an interreligious dialogue
