Creating Life From Life Biotechnology And Science Fiction:

Creating Life from Life Rosalyn W. Berne, 2014-12-19 This book is a collection of essays by scientists historians philosophers of science and students The essays meld biotechnology into science fiction stories and thereby open a conversation about the morality of what we may be one day and what it may mean to be human as our biotechnological endeavors continue to evolve The biotechnology revol

Spaces for the Future Joseph C. Pitt, Ashley Shew, 2017-08-09 Focused on mapping out contemporary and future domains in philosophy of technology this volume serves as an excellent forward looking resource in the field and in cognate areas of study The 32 chapters all of them appearing in print here for the first time were written by both established scholars and fresh voices They cover topics ranging from data discrimination and engineering design to art and technology space junk and beyond Spaces for the Future A Companion to Philosophy of Technology is structured in six parts 1 Ethical Space and Experience 2 Political Space and Agency 3 Virtual Space and Property 4 Personal Space and Design 5 Inner Space and Environment and 6 Outer Space and Imagination The organization maps out current and emerging spaces of activity in the field and anticipates the big issues that we soon will face

Ambivalences of Creating Life Kristin Hagen, Margret Engelhard, Georg Toepfer, 2015-08-27 Synthetic biology is the label of a new technoscientific field with many different facets and agendas One common aim is to create life primarily by using engineering principles to design and modify biological systems for human use In a wider context the topic has become one of the big cases in the legitimization processes associated with the political agenda to solve global problems with the aid of bio technological innovation Conceptual level and meta level analyses are needed we should sort out conceptual ambiguities to agree on what we talk about and we need to spell out agendas to see the disagreements clearly The book is based on the interdisciplinary summer school Analyzing the societal dimensions of synthetic biology which took place in Berlin in September 2014 The contributions address controversial discussions around the philosophical examination public perception moral evaluation and governance of synthetic biology

Creating Life in the Lab Fazale Rana, 2011-02-01 Each year brings to light new scientific discoveries that have the power to either test our faith or strengthen it most recently the news that scientists have created artificial life forms in the laboratory If humans can create life what does that mean for the creation story found in Scripture Biochemist and Christian apologist Fazale Rana for one isn't worried In Creating Life in the Lab he details the fascinating quest for synthetic life and argues convincingly that when scientists succeed in creating life in the lab they will unwittingly undermine the evolutionary explanation for the origin of life demonstrating instead that undirected chemical processes cannot produce a living entity

Project(ing) Human: Representations of Disability in Science Fiction Courtney Stanton, 2023-05-30 This edited volume examines representations of disability within popular science fiction using examples from television film literature and gaming to explore how the genre of science fiction shapes cultural understanding of disability experience Science fiction texts typically grapple with concepts such as transhumanism embodiment and autonomy more directly than do those of other genres. In doing so they raise significant questions about the experience of disability. More broadly they often convey the place of disability in not only the future but also the world of today. Through critical research the chapters within this interdisciplinary collection explore what science fiction texts convey about the value of disability whether it be through disabled characters, biotechnologies or more broadly conceptions of an idealized future. Chapters are grouped thematically and include discussions of the intersections of disability with other identity groups, the interplay of disability and market capitalist value and how disability shapes current and future definitions of humanness, agency and autonomy. This full volume builds on current research regarding the relationship of disability studies to the science fiction genre by exploring new themes and contemporary media to aid as an instructional tool for scholars in fields of disability studies, science fiction literature and media studies.

Bioengineering: Rewriting Life Denis D., 2025-10-11 We are living in an era where humanity no longer merely understands life but actively rewrites it. From CRISPR which enables high precision gene editing to gene therapy that promises to cure diseases at their genetic roots, the world of bioengineering marks a profound revolution in the history of science and humanity. The book Bioengineering: Rewriting Life clearly explains how genetic technologies work, their impacts on health, food and the future of humankind while exploring the moral dilemmas that accompany them. Inside you will discover clear yet scientific explanations of how CRISPR and gene therapy function. Fascinating facts about GMOs (Genetically Modified Organisms) in modern food systems. Discussions on organ bioprinting and genetically engineered babies. Ethical debates: how far should humans go in modifying themselves. Written in an accessible popular science style, this book is perfect for biotechnology students, medical professionals, researchers, ethics advocates and general readers who wish to understand the future of life shaped by human hands. Will bioengineering become the answer to a world free from disease or the beginning of an era of artificial humanity?

Foodopoly Wenonah Hauter, 2015-04-07 A meticulously researched tour de force on politics, big agriculture and the need to go beyond farmers markets to find fixes. Publishers Weekly: Wenonah Hauter owns an organic family farm that provides healthy vegetables to hundreds of families as part of the Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) movement. Yet as a leading healthy food advocate, Hauter believes that the local food movement is not enough to solve America's food crisis and the public health debacle it has created. In Foodopoly she takes aim at the real culprit: the control of food production by a handful of large corporations backed by political clout that prevents farmers from raising healthy crops and limits the choices people can make in the grocery store. Blending history, reporting and a deep understanding of farming and food production, Foodopoly is a shocking, revealing account of the business behind the meat, vegetables, grains and milk most Americans eat every day, including some of our favorite and most respected organic and health-conscious brands. Hauter also pulls the curtain back from the little-understood but vital realm of agricultural policy, showing how it has been hijacked by lobbyists driving out independent farmers and food processors in favor of the likes of Cargill, Tyson, Kraft and ConAgra. Foodopoly shows how the impacts ripple far and wide from economic stagnation in rural communities to famines overseas and argues that solving this crisis will require a complete structural shift a change that is about politics not just personal choice

Can Science Make Sense of Life? Sheila Jasanoff, 2019-03-05 Since the discovery of the structure of DNA and the birth of the genetic age a powerful vocabulary has emerged to express science's growing command over the matter of life Armed with knowledge of the code that governs all living things biology and biotechnology are poised to edit even rewrite the texts of life to correct nature's mistakes Yet how far should the capacity to manipulate what life is at the molecular level authorize science to define what life is for This book looks at flash points in law politics ethics and culture to argue that science's promises of perfectibility have gone too far Science may have editorial control over the material elements of life but it does not supersede the languages of sense making that have helped define human values across millennia the meanings of autonomy integrity and privacy the bonds of kinship family and society and the place of humans in nature
