Composition Studies in the New Millennium Lynn Z. Bloom, Donald A. Daiker, Edward Michael White, 2003

Play/Write Douglas Eyman, Andréa D. Davis, 2016-04-06 lay Write Digital Rhetoric Writing Games is an edited collection of essays that examines the relationship between games and writing examining how writing functions both within games and the networks of activity that surround games and gameplay The collection is organized based on the primary location and function of the game writing relationship examining writing about games games as objects of critique and sites of rhetorical action ancillary and instructional writing that takes place around games the writing that takes place within the game using games as persuasive forms of communication writing through games and writing that goes into the production of games While not every chapter focuses exclusively on pedagogy the collection includes many selections that consider the possibilities of using computer games in writing instruction However it also provides a bridge between academic views of games as contexts for writing and industry approaches to the writing process in game design as well as an examination of a variety of game related genres that could be used in composition courses

Distant Readings of Disciplinarity Benjamin Miller, 2022-12-28 In Distant Readings of Disciplinarity Benjamin Miller brings a big data approach to the study of disciplinarity in rhetoric composition and writing studies RCWS by developing scalable maps of the methods and topics of several thousand RCWS dissertations from 2001 to 2015 Combining charts and figures with engaging and even playful prose Miller offers an accessible model of how large scale data driven research can advance disciplinary understanding both answering and amplifying the call to add replicable data analysis and visualization to the mix of methods regularly employed in the field Writing studies has long been marked by a multitude of methods and interlocking purposes partaking of not just humanities approaches but also social scientific ones with data drawn from interviews and surveys alongside historical and philosophical arguments and with corpus analytics in large scale collections jostling against small scale case studies of individuals These areas of study aren't always cleanly separable shifting modes mark the discipline as open and welcoming to many different angles of research The field needs to embrace that vantage point and generate new degrees of familiarity with methods beyond those of any individual scholar Not only a training genre and not only a knowledge making genre the dissertation is also a discipline producing genre Illustrating what the field has been studying and how Distant Readings of Disciplinarity supports more fruitful collaborations within and across research areas and methods

Introduction to Scholarship in Modern Languages and Literatures David G. Nicholls, 2015-01-01 The third edition of the MLA s widely used Introduction to Scholarship in Modern Languages and Literatures features sixteen new essays by leading scholars Designed to highlight relations among languages and forms of discourse the volume is organized into three sections Understanding Language provides an overview of the field of linguistics with special attention to language acquisition and the social life of languages Forming Texts offers tools for understanding how speakers and writers shape language it examines scholarship in the distinct but interrelated fields of rhetoric composition and poetics Reading Literature and Culture continues the work of the first two sections by introducing major areas of critical study. The nine essays in this section cover textual and historical scholarship, interpretation, comparative cultural and translation studies, and the interdisciplinary topics of gender, sexuality, race, and migrations among others. As in previous volumes, an epilogue examines the role of the scholar in contemporary society. Each essay discusses the significance, underlying assumptions, and limits of an important field of inquiry, traces the historical development of its subject, introduces key terms, outlines modes of research now being pursued, postulates future developments, and provides a list of suggestions for further reading. This book will interest any member of the academic community seeking a review of recent scholarship while it provides an indispensable resource for undergraduate and graduate students of modern languages and literatures.

Postcomposition Sidney I Dobrin, 2011-06-02

Leading a burgeoning self-critical moment in composition studies and writing program administration, Postcomposition is a fundamental reconsideration of the field that attempts to shift the focus away from pedagogy and writing subjects and toward writing itself. In this forceful and reasoned critique of many of the primary tenets and widely accepted institutional structures of composition studies, Sidney I. Dobrin delivers a series of shocks to the system meant to disrupt the pedagogical imperative and move beyond the existing limits of the discipline. Dobrin evaluates the current state of composition studies, underscoring the difference between composition and writing and arguing that the field's focus on the administration of writing students and its historically imposed prohibition on theory greatly limit what can be understood about writing. Instead, he envisions a more significant approach to writing, one that questions the field's conservative allegiance to subject and administration and reconsiders writing as spatial and ecological. Using concepts from ecocomposition, spatial theory, network theory, complexity theory, and systems theory, Postcomposition lays the groundwork for a networked theory of writing and advocates the abandonment of administration as a useful part of the field. He also challenges the usefulness of rhetoric in writing studies, showing how writing exceeds rhetoric. Postcomposition is a detailed consideration of how posthumanism affects the field's understanding of subjectivity. It also tears at the seams of the contingent labor problem. As he articulates his own frustrations with the conservatism of composition studies and builds on previous critiques of the discipline, Dobrin stages a courageous and inevitably polemical intellectual challenge to the entrenched ideas and assumptions that have defined composition studies.
