IN CONGRESS. JULY 4th 1776.

Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

We the People of the United States, in Order to secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do hereby declare...

IN CONGRESS

United States of America

Declaration of Independence

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as shall seem best to them.

But a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them to absolute Tyranny, — that it is their duty to throw off such Government, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as shall seem best to them.

IN CONGRESS, 1776. A unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such Manner, as they shall judge most likely to promote their Safety and Happiness. In extending the light of knowledge, and increasing the means of intelligence, to those of such former age, and accordingly all reference whatsoever to Slavery, and to the support of it, are hereby disavowed, and rejected, as being inconsistent with the sacred rights of mankind, and with the principles and the spirit of the Declaration of Independence, which has ever been regarded as the basis and the foundation of all our rights and liberties.

That the United Colonies by these presents, do declare themselves free and independent States, absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all future attempts by the King of Great Britain to invade their rights or to impose on them a new Government shall be regarded as tyrannical and oppressive.

That for the support of this Declaration, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hands and seals, the thirteenth day of September, in the second year of the said Independence.

Attest
