Completing Our Streets The Transition To Safe And Inclusive Transportation Networks:

Completing Our Streets Barbara McCann, 2013 Across the country communities are embracing a new and safer way to build streets for everyone even as they struggle to change decades of rules practice and politics that prioritize cars They have discovered that changing the design of a single street is not enough they must upend the way transportation agencies operate Completing Our Streets begins with the story of how the complete streets movement united bicycle riders transportation practitioners and agencies public health leaders older Americans and smart growth advocates to dramatically re frame the discussion of transportation safety Next it explores why the transportation field has been so resistant to change and how the movement has broken through to create a new multi modal approach In Completing Our Streets Barbara McCann founder of the National Complete Streets Coalition explains that the movement is not about street design Instead practitioners and activists have changed the way projects are built by focusing on three strategies reframe the conversation build a broad base of political support and provide a clear path to a multi modal process McCann shares stories of practitioners in cities and towns from Charlotte North Carolina to Colorado Springs Colorado who have embraced these strategies to fundamentally change the way transportation projects are chosen planned and built The complete streets movement is based around a simple idea streets should be safe for people of all ages and abilities whether they are walking driving bicycling or taking the bus Completing Our Streets gives practitioners and activists the strategies tools and inspiration needed to translate this idea into real and lasting change in their communities Transport Services

Management in Africa Emmanuel Mogaji, Ogochukwu Ugboma, Chinebuli Uzundu, 2025-10-15 Transportation is an essential part of human activity and a service that makes an enormous contribution to the economic social and general well being of countries and their citizens However many developing countries and emerging economies are suffering from institutional challenges that impact their transport infrastructure and ability to provide an effective transport service This book highlights the research on transportation services in Africa and provides theoretical underpinning for future studies on transport service management It recognises that one size does not fit all acknowledging that transport service provision in Africa needs to be contextualised amidst the inherent challenges and the travel demands of citizens This book moves beyond Western transport land use and engineering research to explore transportation from a services and business perspective and provides a comprehensive resource encompassing transport service quality marketing communication public sector engagement with stakeholders and sustainable and inclusive transportation This edited collection brings together insights from authors across Africa to provide much needed theoretical and practical knowledge for academic researchers and students as well as policymakers in the region Reclaiming the Road David L Prytherch, 2025-06-17 Imagining equitable streets for all For the past century our roadways have been engineered as pipes for cars but they offer vast potential as public spaces From New York and Boston to Portland and Los Angeles cities are rethinking their streets going beyond sidewalks and bike lanes to welcome nonmotorists to share the asphalt roadway Reclaiming the Road traces the historical evolution of America's streets and explores contemporary movements to retake them from cars temporarily and permanently for diverse forms of mobility and community life To share the street raises important questions of equity in transportation and beyond David L. Prytherch proposes a bold intersectional vision of a more just street Reclaiming the Road connects cutting edge theory policy analysis and firsthand accounts from those leading the charge in transforming our streets to advocate for changing how we think about and design roads Prytherch features case studies of nine major cities in the United States to show how experiments in reclaiming streets accelerated during the Covid 19 pandemic to become lasting changes Through in depth interviews he shares stories of how planners transportation advocates and community leaders have implemented innovative programs for slowing neighborhood streets opening roads for walking and biking and reconstructing roadways with public parklets and street plazas as social spaces for curbside conversation Examining movements to transform streets through the lenses of equity and justice Reclaiming the Road tackles the conceptual challenge of defining mobility justice and the practicalities of planning a more just public street offering a compelling vision for the future of America's public spaces Retail e book files for this title are screen reader friendly with images accompanied by short alt text and/or extended descriptions

Incomplete Streets Stephen Zavestoski, Julian Agyeman, 2014-08-27 The Complete Streets concept and movement in urban planning and policy has been hailed by many as a revolution that aims to challenge the auto normative paradigm by reversing the broader effects of an urban form shaped by the logic of keeping automobiles moving By enabling safe access for all users Complete Streets promise to make cities more walkable and livable and at the same time more sustainable This book problematizes the Complete Streets concept by suggesting that streets should not be thought of as merely physical spaces but as symbolic and social spaces When important social and symbolic narratives are missing from the discourse and practice of Complete Streets what actually results are incomplete streets The volume questions whether the ways in which complete streets narratives policies plans and efforts are envisioned and implemented might be systematically reproducing many of the urban spatial and social inequalities and injustices that have characterized cities for the last century or more From critiques of a mobility bias rooted in the neoliberal foundations of the Complete Streets concept to concerns about resulting environmental gentrification the chapters in Incomplete Streets variously call for planning processes that give voice to the historically marginalized and more broadly that approach streets as dynamic fluid and public social places This interdisciplinary book is aimed at students researchers and professionals in the fields of urban geography environmental studies urban planning and policy transportation planning and urban sociology
