David E. Newton

Comprehensive Cervical Cancer Control A Guide To Essential Practice:

Comprehensive Cervical Cancer Control, 2006 Most women who die from cervical cancer particularly in developing countries are in the prime of their life They may be raising children caring for their family and contributing to the social and economic life of their town or village Their death is both a personal tragedy and a sad and unnecessary loss to their family and their community Unnecessary because there is compelling evidence as this Guide makes clear that cervical cancer is one of the most preventable and treatable forms of cancer as long as it is detected early and managed effectively Unfortunately the majority of women in developing countries still do not have access to cervical cancer prevention programmes The consequence is that often cervical cancer is not detected until it is too late to be cured An urgent effort is required if this situation is to be corrected This Guide is intended to help those responsible for providing services aimed at reducing the burden posed by cervical cancer for women communities and health systems It focuses on the knowledge and skills needed by health care providers at different levels of care

Comprehensive Cervical Cancer Control World Health Organization, 2016-11-11 This publication gives a broad vision of what a comprehensive approach to cervical cancer prevention and control means In particular it outlines the complementary strategies for comprehensive cervical cancer prevention and control and highlights the need for collaboration across programs organizations and partners This new guide updates the 2006 edition and includes the recent promising developments in technologies and strategies that can address the gaps between the needs for and availability of services for cervical cancer prevention and control In the last few years there has been an emergence of ground breaking new strategies in cervical cancer prevention and control Because such strategies require evidence based evaluation for decision making in clinical practice and program planning a World Health Organization WHO Steering Committee and a group of invited experts met in Geneva Switzerland in September 2010 to ensure that the WHO s guidance on cervical cancer continues to encompass all the relevant technologies and strategies This edition of the guide has two new chapters Chapter 2 Essentials for cervical cancer prevention and control programs and Chapter 4 HPV vaccination One chapter has been newly organized Chapter 5 Screening and treatment of cervical pre cancer All other chapters have been thoroughly updated and edited as needed This guide aims to assist those responsible for providing services aimed at reducing the burden of cervical cancer on women their communities and health systems It focuses on the knowledge best practices and communication skills needed by health care providers working at community and primary and secondary levels of care to offer quality services for prevention screening treatment and palliative care for cervical cancer the full continuum of care The guide is intended primarily for health care providers in health centers and district hospitals who deal with women s health and or adolescent s health but it may also be of interest to community based and tertiary level providers Providers and managers at the sub national level whose responsibilities may include program planning would be interested in Chapter 2 on program essentials which covers implementation monitoring and evaluating and or supervising
