Composing a Life Mary Catherine Bateson, 1989 This extraordinary book explores that act of creation that engages us all the composition of our lives Through the comparative biographies of herself and four of her close friends Mary Catherine Bateson provides a fascinating framework for her inquiry into the creative potential of complex lives where energies are not narrowly focused toward a single ambition but rather are continually refocused and redefined Each of the women in Composing a Life faced discontinuity at periods in her life yet was rich in professional achievement and personal relationships Bateson's life affirming conclusion is that life is an improvisational art form and that the interruptions conflicted priorities and exigencies that are a part of all our lives can and should be seen as a source of wisdom Important and empowering Composing a Life will change lives

Composing a Further Life Mary Catherine Bateson, 2010-09-14 From the author of Composing a Life first published in 1991 and still in print an inspiring exploration of a new stage of the life cycle Adulthood II created by unprecedented levels of health energy time and resources of which we have barely begun to be fully conscious Mary Catherine Bateson sees aging today as an improvisational art form calling for imagination and willingness to learn and in this ardent affirming study she relates the experiences of men and women herself included who upon entering this second adulthood have found new meaning and new ways to contribute composing their lives in new patterns Among the people Bateson engages in open ended in depth conversations are a retired Maine boatyard worker who has become a silversmith and maker of fine jewelry an African American woman who explores the importance of grandmothering two gay men finding contentment in mutual caring the retired dean of a cathedral in New York City who exemplifies how a multiplicity of interests and connections lead to deeper unity and Jane Fonda who shares her ways of dealing with change and spiritual growth Here is a book that presents each of us at any age with an exhilarating challenge to think about and approach our later lives with the full force of imagination curiosity and enthusiasm At the same time it speaks to us as members of a larger society concerned about the world that our children and grandchildren born and not yet born will inherit We live longer she says but we think shorter As adults find themselves entering Adulthood II making the choices that will affirm and complete the meaning of the lives they have lived they can play a key role contributing their perspectives and their experience of adapting to change In our day wisdom is no longer associated with withdrawal and passivity but with engagement with others and the contribution that Bateson calls active wisdom

Willing to Learn Mary Catherine Bateson, 2004 WRITER AND EDUCATOR Mary Catherine Bateson is best known for the proposal that lives should be looked at as compositions each one an artistic creation expressing individual responses to the unexpected This collection can be read as a memoir of unfolding curiosity for it brings together essays and occasional pieces many of them previously unpublished or unknown to readers who know the author only from her books written in the course of an unconventional career Bateson's professional life was interrupted repeatedly She responded by refocusing her curiosity by being willing to learn The connections and echoes between the entries in her book are as intriguing as the contrasts in style and subject matter The work is grounded in cultural anthropology but shaped by the observation that in a world of rapid change and encounters with strangers individuals can no longer depend on following traditionally defined paths Willing to Learn is arranged thematically One section includes a sampling of writings about Bateson's parents anthropologists Margaret Mead and Gregory Bateson The longest section focuses primarily on the contemporary United States and deals with life stages and gender Bateson argues that because women's lives have changed most radically women are pioneers of emerging patterns that will affect everyone Another section deals with belief systems conflict and change especially in the Middle East and the final section with different ways of knowing Bateson is a singular thinker whose work enriches lives by bringing fresh original ideas to subjects that affect all of our lives Willing to Learn is at once an articulation of and an enduring testament to the artistic creation Bateson has produced pursuing her own life's work
