Negotiating Opportunities Jessica McCrory Calarco,2018 In Negotiating Opportunities Jessica McCrory Calarco argues that the middle class has a negotiated advantage in school Drawing on five years of ethnographic fieldwork Calarco traces that negotiated advantage from its origins at home to its consequences at school Through their parents coaching working class students learn to follow rules and work through problems independently Middle class students learn to challenge rules and request assistance accommodations and attention in excess of what is fair or required Teachers typically grant those requests creating advantages for middle class students Calarco concludes with recommendations advocating against deficit oriented programs that teach middle class behaviors to working class students Those programs ignore the value of working class students resourcefulness respect and responsibility and they do little to prevent middle class families from finding new opportunities to negotiate advantages in school

Every Child, Every Day Michael K. Raible,2015-12-14 Reform of the educational systems in the United States and all over the world are coming from a wide variety of sources philanthropists and businesses federal and state governments administrators and teachers both large and small school districts More nimble school districts have the best chance of creating a revised model of educational delivery that will produce successful students The national statistics are awful For every 100 low income students that enter high school only 65 will get a high school diploma 53 will enroll in college and will 11 actually complete a college degree Nachazel and Dziuba 2014 And the statistics for students living in poverty are far worse This is one of many reasons why Roger Cook and the Taylor County Schools are of particular interest Any district with a 61% poverty rate and over 40% of students attending college and zero yes zero dropouts deserves to be examined
