could be more confident in his or her decision He has also suggested three steps The first step is to assume that the cultural connotation of the Chinese metaphor can be connected with that of its English version For example the metaphor in could be translated as rain or shine The second step is to find out whether or not this translated version is acceptable both linguistically and culturally in English The third step is to consider the systematicity of the metaphor in regard with the context in both the source and target texts This involves a process of recontextualization When it comes to Translation and Cross cultural Studies On Translation of the English Guide interpreter from the Perspective of Intercultural Communication by Fengxia Liua and Xiaoning Bi points out that inbound tourism serves as a window through which foreign tourists get to know China so the interaction between the guide interpreters and foreign tourists are the typical activity of cultural communication Foreign language speaking guides are usually regarded as people to people ambassadors or cultural ambassadors who have played an essential role in the international tourist industry Therefore they argue that it is extremely important for tourist guides to cultivate their cross cultural communication awareness enhance their overall communicative competence observe and distinguish east and west differences with multi dimensional perspective transcend cultural barriers and learn to use translation skills Studies on the Teaching of Translation is another interesting topic that has attracted enormous attention such as Business Translation Teaching from the Perspective of Metaphors by Dandan Li which explores application of conceptual metaphor theory in the translation process of business lexicons business discourse and business English culture so as to provide a new perspective in business English pedagogy Another study entitled Cognitive Studies in Translation by Xin Huang analyzes the cognitive studies of translation interpreting processes over the past three decades with focus on the issues examined the findings reached as well as the recent development She explains that cognitive studies of translation process examine the translation competence on line translation behaviors such as how the eye gazes and how the words are typed and the brain activities when doing translation Special interests are paid to the working memory problem solving the executive function and some linguistic relative factors such as text difficulty Over the past thirty years the interest in the field has been gaining considerable momentum and increasing issues have been involved Finally she concludes that with the advancement of technologies and interdisciplinary approaches the black box the previously unforeseeable cognitive activities of how human process translation can be unfolded Considering the importance of integrating theory with practice the proceedings are therefore compiled in such a way as to be balanced and inclusive in the hope of summarizing current accomplishments as well as providing certain insights for teaching and further research in the field of translation and interpretation studies

Masters of Mathematics Robert A. Nowlan, 2017-05-13 The original title for this work was Mathematical Literacy What Is It and Why You Need it The current title reflects that there can be no real learning in any subject unless questions of who what when where why and how are raised in the minds of the learners The book is not a mathematical text and there are no assigned exercises or exams It is written for reasonably intelligent and curious individuals both those who value mathematics aware of its many important applications and others who have been inappropriately exposed to mathematics leading to indifference to the subject fear and even loathing These feelings are all consequences of meaningless presentations drill rote learning and being lost as the purpose of what is being studied Mathematics education needs a radical reform There is more than one way to accomplish this Here the author presents his approach of wrapping mathematical ideas in a story To learn one first must develop an interest in a problem and the curiosity to find how masters of mathematics have solved them What is necessary to be mathematically literate It s not about solving algebraic equations or even making a geometric proof These are valuable skills but not evidence of literacy We often seek answers but learning to ask pertinent questions is the road to mathematical literacy Here is the good news new mathematical ideas have a way of finding applications This is known as the unreasonable effectiveness of mathematics
