Climate Change Forests And Redd Climate Change Forests And Redd:

Climate Change, Forests and REDD Joyeeta Gupta, Nicolien van der Grijp, Onno Kuik, 2013 This book explores how an analysis of past forest governance patterns from the global through to the local level can help us to build institutions which more effectively deal with forests within the climate change regime The book assesses the options under REDD to reduce emissions from deforestation in developing countries in the context of other forest policies Based on an assessment of existing multi level institutional forestry arrangements the book questions how policy frameworks can be better designed in order to effectively and equitably govern the challenges of deforestation and land degradation under the global climate change regime Forests and Climate Change Anthony Hall, 2012-04-01 Controlling deforestation which is responsible for about one fifth of the world's greenhouse gas emissions has become a major tool in the battle against global warming An important new international initiative Reduced Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation REDD provides economic incentives to forest users to encourage preservation of trees Nearly all Latin American countries are introducing national REDD strategies and pilot schemes This insightful book raises questions over some of the basic assumptions that underpin REDD policies in Latin America It raises doubts about whether sufficient account is being taken of the complex social economic cultural and governance dimensions involved advocating a comprehensive social development approach to REDD planning Forests and Climate Change is the first book to comprehensively examine REDD policies across Latin America including a focus on social aspects It will prove invaluable for academics and postgraduate students in the fields of environmental studies environmental politics geography social planning social and environmental impact assessment development studies and Latin American area studies Policy makers planners and practitioners working on REDD at national and international levels both official and NGO sectors will also find plenty of refreshing data in this much needed resource

Why REDD will Fail Jessica DeShazo, Chandra Pandey, Zachary A. Smith, 2016-02-05 Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and forest Degradation REDD attempts to address climate change from one angle by paying developing countries to slow or stop deforestation and forest degradation Trumpeted as a way to both mitigate climate change and assist countries with development REDD was presented as a win win solution However there have been few attempts to understand and analyse the overall framework Why REDD Will Fail argues that the important goals will not be met under the existing REDD regime unless the actual drivers of deforestation and forest degradation are diminished The book delves into the problematic details of the regime ranging from national capacity to monitor results the funding mechanism the definition of a forest leakage and the impetus behind the drivers of deforestation and forest degradation As the international community rallies around REDD and developed countries and companies are willing to commit substantial amounts to implement the scheme this book seeks to address whether REDD has the potential to achieve its purported goals This is an important resource for academics and students interested in the policy and management aspects of mitigating climate change

Redeeming REDD Michael I. Brown, 2013-06-26 It is now well accepted that deforestation is a key source of greenhouse gas emissions and of climate change with forests representing major sinks for carbon As a result public and private initiatives for reducing emissions from deforestation and forest degradation REDD have been widely endorsed by policy makers A key issue is the feasibility of carbon trading or other incentives to encourage land owners and indigenous people particularly in developing tropical countries to conserve forests rather than to cut them down for agricultural or other development purposes This book presents a major critique of the aims and policies of REDD as currently structured particularly in terms of their social feasibility It is shown how the claims to be able to reduce greenhouse gas emissions as well as enhance people's livelihoods and biodiversity conservation are unrealistic There is a naive assumption that technical or economic fixes are sufficient for success However the social and governance aspects of REDD and its enhanced version known as REDD+ are shown to be implausible Instead to enhance REDD's prospects the author provides a roadmap for developing a new social contract that puts people first Simply REDD, 2009

Strengthening National Forest Monitoring Systems for REDD+ Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-07-20 The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations FAO has been providing support to member countries on national forest monitoring for decades Best practices and lessons learned from this support are summarized in FAO's Voluntary guidelines on national forest monitoring VGNFM The guidelines provide principles elements and best practices for the establishment and implementation of a multipurpose National Forest Monitoring System NFMS The aim of this paper is to strengthen the elements and guidelines provided in the VGNFM in the context of Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation REDD It also includes a deeper analysis of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change decisions and the most recent methodological recommendations provided by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change focusing on the three pillars of an NFMS for REDD a Satellite Land Monitoring System a National Forest Inventory and REDD reporting including the combination of remote sensing and ground based forest inventory to estimate anthropogenic forest related Greenhouse Gas emissions by sources and removals by sinks The Performance of REDD+ Bas Arts, Verina Ingram, Maria

Brockhaus, 2021-09-09 REDD represents countries efforts to reduce emissions from deforestation and forest degradation and foster conservation the sustainable management of forests and the enhancement of forest carbon stocks The basic idea is that more carbon can be sequestered and stocked in tropical forests by improving their conservation management and sustainable use thus contributing to mitigating climate change The developing countries and relevant stakeholders concerned will be financially compensated for these endeavors either through public funds or private carbon markets Given this context this book will address the need to assess the political and socio economic dimensions of the performance of REDD which is relevant to policy makers practitioners and scholars This implies taking into account the various levels from global to local and dimensions e g results based payments MRV co benefits and community engagement as well as divergent disciplinary connotations of performance We therefore pose the following question What does performance mean In answering this question we provide examples of assessments of performance We present 9 cases of how REDD has performed on local national and international scales and reflect on the representativeness of these examples and their limitations when looking at the current range of REDD initiatives along with what is missing in terms of evaluating the performance of REDD We conclude by establishing why performance assessment remains so relevant today The Impact of Climate Change Mitigation on Indigenous and Forest Communities Maureen F. Tehan, Lee C. Godden, Margaret A. Young, Kirsty A. Gover, 2017-10-26 Legal frameworks to reduce emissions from deforestation and forest degradation REDD are analysed to focus on protections and benefits for indigenous peoples and forest communities Forest Preservation in a Changing Climate Sébastien Jodoin, 2017-10-05 This book explores how the transnational legal process for REDD has affected human rights in developing countries This title is also available as Open Access
