Dealing with Dying, Death, and Grief during Adolescence David E. Balk, 2014-02-18 For some life's introduction to death and grief comes early and when it does it can take many forms Not only does Dealing with Dying Death and Grief during Adolescence tackle them all it does so with David Balk's remarkable sensitivity to and deep knowledge of the pressures and opportunities adolescents face in their transition from childhood to adulthood In seamless jargon free language Balk brings readers up to date with what we know about adolescent development because over time such changes form the backstory we need to comprehend the impact of death and bereavement in an adolescent's life. The book's later chapters break down the recent findings in the study of life-threatening illness and bereavement during adolescence. And crucially, these chapters also examine interventions that assist adolescents coping with these difficulties. Clinicians will come away from this book with both a grounded understanding of adolescent development and the adolescent experience of death and they'll also gain specific tools for helping adolescents cope with death and grief on their own terms. For any clinician committed to supporting adolescents facing some of life's most difficult experiences, this integrated up-to-date and deeply insightful text is simply the book to have. David E. Balk is professor in the department of health and nutrition sciences at Brooklyn College CUNY where he directs the graduate program in thanatology. He is the author of Adolescent Development: Early Through Late Adolescence, Helping the Bereaved College Student and several other books on death and bereavement. He is also co-editor of the 2nd edition of the Handbook of Thanatology (Routledge, 2013).

Adolescent Coping Erica Frydenberg, 2018-06-12 How do young people cope with the multitude of difficult situations and scenarios that are associated with growing up, like anxiety and depression, as well as illness, rejection, and family breakdown? How can we facilitate and encourage, through a combination of health, well-being, and positive mindset, healthy development during adolescence and beyond? With a substantial focus on the positive aspects of coping, including an emphasis on developing resilience and the achievement of happiness, Erica Frydenberg presents the latest developments in the field of coping. Adolescent Coping highlights the ways in which coping can be measured and implemented in a wide range of circumstances and contexts, with suggestions for the development of coping skills and coping skills training, and it provides strong scholarly evidence for the concepts and constructs that it promotes as providing a pathway to resilience. The work is framed as an ongoing interaction between individuals and their environments, as represented by the psychosocial ecological model of Bronfenbrenner. The major theories of coping are articulated, taking account of the transactional model, resources theories, and proactive models of coping. Areas of recent interest, such as neuroscience and epigenetics, are included alongside a new chapter, Cyberworld, which provides insights on new and relevant topics such as mindfulness and the impact of social media as they relate to coping in the contemporary context Adolescent Coping will be of interest to practitioners in psychology social work sociology education and youth and community work as well as to students on courses in adolescent development in these fields
