Ricci,2017-07-12 In a letter to Boccaccio Petrarch extolled the virtue of poetry and letters for promoting an understanding of both human nature and morals The letter was designed to console him after hearing a prediction that he was soon to die and that he ought to renounce poetry The prophecy came from an elder renowned for his piety but Petrarch admonished that too often dishonesty and fraud are couched in religious sentiments Nothing not even death according to Petrarch ought to divert us from literature For Petrarch Virgil was the source for understanding how literary studies not only promote eloquence but enhance morals If anything literature dispels the fear of death The claims of this volume is that it may be the case that the virtuous life can be achieved by those ignorant of letters but a more direct and certain route is guaranteed by a devotion to literature The collected works in this new volume of the Transaction series Religion and Public Life heeds Petrarch s advice that literature not only orients us to life s developmental stages it can provide us with a more complete understanding of the human character while artfully advancing morals To this end Michelle Darnell s opening chapter entitled A New Age of Reason explains how existentialism is an argument for how literature can take on philosophical form not as formal argument but as persuasive narrative Over the objections of even those who study Sartre Darnell uses Sartre s The Age of Reason as a model and shows how his literary output was a legitimate philosophical inquiry In addition to the Darnell piece the volume boasts a series of outstanding and innovative works by scholars in the field Taken together as a whole these authors not only illustrate the moral consequences of an original choice but oblige the reader to explore the ramifications of such a choice in one s own life How to Read African American Literature Aida Levy-Hussen,2016-12-13 How to Read African American Literature offers a series of provocations to unsettle the predominant assumptions readers make when encountering post Civil Rights black fiction Foregrounding the large body of literature and criticism that grapples with legacies of the slave past Aida Levy Hussen s argument develops on two levels as a textual analysis of black historical fiction and as a critical examination of the reading practices that characterize the scholarship of our time Drawing on psychoanalysis memory studies and feminist and queer theory Levy Hussen examines how works by Toni Morrison David Bradley Octavia Butler Charles Johnson and others represent and mediate social injury and collective grief In the criticism that surrounds these novels she identifies two major interpretive approaches therapeutic reading premised on the assurance that literary confrontations with historical trauma will enable psychic healing in the present and prohibitive reading anchored in the belief that fictions of returning to the past are dangerous and to be avoided Levy Hussen argues that these norms have become overly restrictive standing in the way of a more supple method of interpretation that recognizes and attends to the indirect unexpected inconsistent and opaque workings of historical fantasy and desire Moving beyond the question of whether literature must heal or abandon historical wounds Levy Hussen proposes new ways to read African American literature now
