

DEBEG 5900

Search and Rescue Radar Transponder (SART)

The SART forms an important part of the Global Maritime Distress and Safety System (GMDSS). The fundamental function of the transponder which consists of a 9 GHz transmitter/receiver is to indicate the position of a ship in distress by producing range and bearing information on any X-Band Radar screen.

The transmitted SART code of the DEBEG 5900, an internationally agreed signal for search and rescue operations, is displayed on the Radar screen as a dotted line which represents a range of approx. 10 nautical miles. The SART once activated responds automatically using a 100 μ s response pulse, which is synchronous to any received Radar transmitted pulse. In addition the DEBEG 5900 gives confidence to survivors by giving an audible signal and visual indication of the approach of assistance.

The DEBEG 5900 is delivered with container and mounting bracket for the installation at a convenient place near the lifeboats. The container of epoxy coated aluminium protects the SART from the harsh sea as well as from the electromagnetic environment. A marineised rubber fixing plate for the installation of the SART on top of a liferaft canopy is supplied as standard to achieve good stability and transmission in heavy seas.

The DEBEG 5900 SART meets the future demands of the ship's safety in the GMDSS and complies with or exceeds the specifications of International Electronic Commission (IEC) and the standards of the European Telecommunications Standards Institute (ETSI).
