Canoe Trip North To Athabasca:

Canoe Trip David Curran, 2010 In June of 2002 the author and his friend set out to descend by canoe a rarely traveled and extremely remote wilderness river in northern Saskatchewan the MacFarlane River and eventually arrive at pristine Lake Athabasca It is a river journey few have attempted the first recorded descent was in 1991 passing through an uninhabited and inhospitable region of the vast Canadian north It is an area rarely entered and even more rarely written about From encounters with nasty grizzlies to some of the most challenging conditions imaginable David Curran manages to survive his first foray into true wilderness and writes about his adventure in a style reminiscent of Bill Bryson's A Walk in the Woods with self deprecating humor and a novice's appreciation for all things wild In addition the book explores the natural and human history of the region as well as describes the choosing planning and carrying out of a wilderness canoe trip in a style that is informative and engaging

Two of the canoes capsized dumping four men into the frigid waters Moffatt the leader died of exposure It took the survivors ten days of arduous travel with minimum food and equipment to reach the safety of the Hudson s Bay Company post Barren Grounds features passages from the journals of two young Moffatt party members and excerpts about the 1893 expedition of Joseph Burr Tyrrell along with entries from the journal of Art Moffatt himself Part cautionary tale part nail biting adventure the book will appeal to outdoorsmen and armchair adventurers alike
