End-User Development Volkmar Pipek, Mary-Beth Rosson, Volker Wulf, 2009-02-24 Work practices and organizational processes vary widely and evolve constantly The technological infrastructure has to follow allowing or even supporting these changes Traditional approaches to software engineering reach their limits whenever the full spectrum of user requirements cannot be anticipated or the frequency of changes makes software reengineering cycles too clumsy to address all the needs of a specific field of application Moreover the increasing importance of infrastructural aspects particularly the mutual dependencies between technologies usages and domain competencies calls for a differentiation of roles beyond the classical user designer dichotomy End user development EUD addresses these issues by offering lightweight use time support which allows users to configure adapt and evolve their software by themselves EUD is understood as a set of methods techniques and tools that allow users of software systems who are acting as non professional software developers to 1 create modify or extend a software artifact While programming activities by non professional actors are an essential focus EUD also investigates related activities such as collective understanding and sense making of use problems and solutions the interaction among end users with regard to the introduction and diffusion of new configurations or delegation patterns that may also partly involve professional designers with institutional and public stakeholders local cultural and market factors its individual collection and programmatic strengths its financial position all of these things matter This second edition aims to help each museum find the right approach to learning for its unique situation by showing them the range of museum personalities in terms of their being learning institutions what constitutes each type and what the implications are of choosing one or another approach for a particular museum A major theme of the 2nd edition of The Manual of Museum Learning is museum as connector the ways in which museums are facilitating self directed learning by connecting people with resources Not all will connect audiences with learning vehicles in the same way If museum learning is affective learning then it is the role of the museum to connect its visitors program participants and others who benefit from its knowledge to the learning resources that best suit the institution s strengths and matches them to the learning needs of the museum s audiences By connecting users to the resources they are most interested in or which best suit each individual s particular learning styles museums are at their best when they empower individuals to design their own learning experience in ways that resonate best with each individual
