Spatial Violence

Andrew Herscher, Anooradha Siddiqi, 2018-02-02 This book poses spatial violence as a constitutive dimension of architecture and its epistemologies as well as a method for theoretical and historical inquiry intrinsic to architecture and thereby offers an alternative to predominant readings of spatial violence as a topic event fact or other empirical form that may be illustrated by architecture Exploring histories of and through architecture at sites across the globe the chapters in the book blur the purportedly distinctive borders between war and peace framing violence as a form of social political and economic order rather than its exceptional interruption Regarding space and violence as co constitutive the book's collected essays critique modernization and capitalist accumulation as naturalized modes for the extraction of violence from everyday life Focusing on the mediation of violence through architectural registers of construction destruction design use representation theory and history the book suggests that violence is not only something inflicted upon architecture but also something that architecture inflicts In keeping with Walter Benjamin's formulation that there is no document of civilization that is not also a document of barbarism the book offers spatial violence as another name for architecture itself This book was previously published as a special issue of Architectural Theory Review
