

A person with short, light-colored hair, wearing a dark, short-sleeved shirt and dark shorts, stands with their back to the camera in a vast, flat, brown landscape. The horizon is low, and the sky is a deep blue with wispy white clouds. The word "cease" is written in a large, white, cursive script across the upper half of the image.

Cease Lynette Loepky, 2015-01-15 It would be one thing for me to leave another entirely for her to be taken away Cease the tough and tender debut memoir from Alberta writer Lynette Loepky tells the story of a young woman who has decided to leave an eight year relationship As Lyn begins to plan her exit her partner Cecile suddenly falls ill In a tumultuous drop towards a complicated end the young woman is forced to become sole caregiver to the woman she had been planning to leave Set against the family values of rural Alberta this is a story about how we love and why we stay especially in a time of crisis

Cease Lynette Dawn Loepky, 2014 Cecile and Lynette were living on an Old MacDonald style hobby farm commuting into the city for work Each evening Lyn would come home to a farm full of animals and the unpredictable Cec She could be brilliant insightful engaging She could also turn on Lyn suddenly and cruelly After eight and a half years just as Lyn had decided to leave and was beginning to plan her exit Cec became seriously ill Almost overnight Lyn found herself in the role of caregiver at Cec s hospital bedside Lyn s a terrible nurse Cec would tell visitors and Lyn knew she was right Lyn was awkward and jumpy her timing invariably wrong She felt trapped and furious at having to stay guilty for wanting to flee Lyn spent long days and nights at Cec s bedside imagining how death would come and contemplating a relationship gone wrong Impossible to set this right Lyn thought as she lay curled on a small cot in Cec s room One last time Cec surprised her Cease is a blunt and honest account of experiences that are usually kept hidden Told with a frank and intimate voice Cease offers an unsentimental look at the inner workings of a uniquely difficult relationship that is revealed for what it is more human than strange

A Book About Love Jonah Lehrer, 2017-07-25

Weaving together scientific studies from clinical psychologists longitudinal studies of health and happiness historical accounts and literary depictions child rearing manuals and the language of online dating sites Jonah Lehrer's A Book About Love plumbs the most mysterious most formative most important impulse governing our lives Love confuses and compels us and it can destroy and define us It has inspired our greatest poetry defined our societies and our beliefs and governs our biology From the way infants attach to their parents to the way we fall in love with another person to the way some find a love for God or their pets to the way we remember and mourn love after it ends this book focuses on research that attempts even in glancing ways to deal with the long term and the everyday The most dangerous myth of love is that it's easy that we fall into the feeling and then the feeling takes care of itself While we can easily measure the dopamine that causes the initial feelings of falling in love the partnerships and devotions that last decades or longer remain a mystery This book is about that mystery Love Lehrer argues is not built solely on overwhelming passion but fascinatingly on a set of skills to be cultivated over a lifetime

Waiting for the End Earl G. Ingersoll, 2007 Waiting for the End examines two dozen contemporary novels within the context of a half century of theorizing about the function of ending in narrative That theorizing about ending generated a powerful dynamic a quarter century ago with the advent of feminist criticism of masculinist readings of the role played by ending in fiction Feminists such as Theresa de Lauretis in 1984 and more famously Susan Winnett in her 1991 PMLA essay Coming Unstrung were leading voices in a swelling chorus of theorist pointing out the masculinist bias of ending in narrative With the entry of feminist readings of ending it became inevitable that criticism of fiction would become gendered through the recognition of difference transcending a simple binary of female male to establish a spectrum of masculine to feminine endings regardless of the sex of the writer Accordingly Waiting for the End examines pairs of novels one pair by Margaret Atwood and one by Ian McEwan to demonstrate how a writer can offer endings at either end of the gender spectrum
