

It has to be stated that, since the 1970s, there has been a significant increase in the number of people who are not employed in the formal sector of the economy. This is due to the fact that the informal sector has become a major source of employment for many people, especially in developing countries.

The informal sector is a sector of the economy that is not regulated by the government. It is a sector that is often characterized by low wages, poor working conditions, and a lack of social security. However, it is also a sector that provides a source of income for many people who are unable to find work in the formal sector.
