Contested Agronomy Agricultural Research In A Changing World Pathways To Sustainability:

Contested Agronomy James Sumberg, John Thompson, 2012-03-15 The dramatic increases in food prices experienced over the last four years and their effects of hunger and food insecurity as well as human induced climate change and its implications for agriculture food production and food security are key topics within the field of agronomy and agricultural research Contested Agronomy addresses these issues by exploring key developments since the mid 1970s focusing in particular on the emergence of the neoliberal project and the rise of the participation and environmental agendas taking into consideration how these have had profound impacts on the practice of agronomic research in the developing world especially over the last four decades This book explores through a series of case studies the basis for a much needed political agronomy analysis that highlights the impacts of problem framing and narratives historical disjunctures epistemic communities and the increasing pressure to demonstrate success on both agricultural research and the farmers processors and consumers it is meant to serve Whilst being a fascinating and thought provoking read for professionals in the Agriculture and Environmental sciences it will also appeal to students and researchers in agricultural policy development studies geography public administration rural sociology and science and technology studies

Governing Agricultural Sustainability Phil Macnaghten, Susana Carro-Ripalda, 2015-06-26 Although GM crops are seen by their advocates as a key component of the future of world agriculture and as part of the solution for world poverty and hunger their uptake has not been smooth nor universal they have been marred by controversy and all too commonly their regulation has been challenged as inadequate even biased This book aims to understand these dynamics examining the impacts of GM crops in diverse contexts and their potentials to contribute to sustainable agricultural futures Part 1 draws on research from three global rising powers Brazil India and Mexico exploring the views of scientists farmers and publics Using a diverse array of ethnographic and qualitative methodologies the book examines the dynamics that have underpinned the controversy in three diverse geo political contexts the manner in which dominant institutional framings have been closely aligned with the interests of powerful elites and the multiple ways in which these have been resisted through local symbolic and material practices Part 2 comprises a series of short comment pieces from 11 leading social and natural scientists responding to the question of how to develop a policy framework for the responsible innovation of sustainable culturally appropriate and socially just agricultural GM technologies This innovative book offers new insights for researchers and postgraduates in Science and technology studies Agro ecology and Environmental Studies Development studies Anthropology Human Geography Sociology Political Science Public Administration Latin American studies and Asian studies

The Politics of Green Transformations Ian Scoones, Melissa Leach, Peter Newell, 2015-01-09 Multiple green transformations are required if humanity is to live sustainably on planet Earth Recalling past transformations this book examines what makes the current challenge different and especially urgent It examines how green transformations must take place in the context of the particular moments of capitalist development and in relation to particular alliances The role of the state is emphasised both in terms of the type of incentives required to make green transformations politically feasible and the way states must take a developmental role in financing innovation and technology for green transformations The book also highlights the role of citizens as innovators entrepreneurs green consumers and members of social movements Green transformations must be both top down involving elite alliances between states and business but also bottom up pushed by grassroots innovators and entrepreneurs and part of wider mobilisations among civil society The chapters in the book draw on international examples to emphasise how contexts matter in shaping pathways to sustainability Written by experts in the field this book will be of great interest to researchers and students in environmental studies international relations political science development studies geography and anthropology as well as policymakers and practitioners concerned with sustainability

Transforming Health Markets in Asia and Africa Gerald Bloom, 2013 There has been a dramatic spread of health markets in much of Asia and Africa over the past couple of decades This has substantially increased the availability of health related goods and services in all but the most remote localities but it has created problems with safety efficiency and cost This book documents the problems associated with unregulated health markets and presents innovative approaches that have emerged to address them

Agronomy for Development James Sumberg, 2017-07-06 Over the last decade there has been renewed interest in food security and the state of the global food system Population growth climate change and food price spikes have combined to focus new attention on the technologies and institutions that underpin the production and consumption of food that is varied nutritious and safe Knowledge politics within development oriented agronomy set the stage for some models of agricultural development to be favoured over others with very real implications for the food security and wellbeing of many millions of people Agronomy for Development demonstrates how the analysis of knowledge politics can shed valuable new light on current debates about agricultural development and food security Using bio physical and social sciences perspectives to address the political economy of the production and use of knowledge in development this edited collection reflects on the changing politics of knowledge within the field of agronomy and the ways in which these politics feed and reflect the interests of a broad set of actors This book is aimed at professionals working in agricultural research as well as students and practitioners of agricultural rural and international development

Pastoralism and Development in Africa Andy Catley, Ian Scoones, Jeremy Lind, 2013 Once again the Horn of Africa has been in the headlines And once again the news has been bad drought famine conflict hunger suffering and death The finger of blame has been pointed in numerous directions to the changing climate to environmental degradation to overpopulation to geopolitics and conflict to aid agency failures and more But it is not all disaster and catastrophe Many successful development efforts at the margins often remain hidden informal sometimes illegal and rarely in line with standard development prescriptions If we shift our gaze from the capital cities to the regional centres and their hinterlands then a very different perspective emerges These are the places where pastoralists live They have for centuries struggled with drought conflict and famine They are resourceful entrepreneurial and innovative peoples Yet they have been ignored and marginalised by the states that control their territory and the development agencies who are supposed to help them This book argues that while we should not ignore the profound difficulties of creating secure livelihoods in the Greater Horn of Africa there is much to be learned from development successes large and small This book will be of great interest to students and scholars with an interest in development studies and human geography with a particular emphasis on Africa It will also appeal to development policy makers and practitioners

One Health Kevin Bardosh, 2016-02-12 Zoonotic diseases pathogens transmitted from animals to people offer particularly challenging problems for global health institutions and actors given the complex social ecological dynamics at play New forms of risk caused by unprecedented global connectivity and rapid social and environmental change demand new approaches One Health highlights the need for collaboration across sectors and disciplines to tackle zoonotic diseases However there has been little exploration of how social political and economic contexts influence efforts to do One Health This book fills this gap by offering a much needed political economy analysis of zoonosis research and policy Through ethnographic qualitative and quantitative data the book draws together a diverse number of case studies These include chapters exploring global narratives about One Health operationalization and prevailing institutional bottlenecks the evolution of research networks over time and the histories and politics behind conflicting disease control approaches The themes from these chapters are further contextualized and expanded upon through country specific case studies from Kenya Zambia Nigeria Ghana and Sierra Leone exploring the translation of One Health research and policy into the African context This book is a valuable resource for academic researchers students and policy practitioners in the areas of global health agriculture and development

Gender Equality and Sustainable Development Melissa Leach, 2015-07-30 For pathways to be truly sustainable and advance gender equality and the rights and capabilities of women and girls those whose lives and well being are at stake must be involved in leading the way Gender Equality and Sustainable Development calls for policies investments and initiatives in sustainable development that recognize women s knowledge agency and decision making as fundamental Four key sets of issues work and industrial production population and reproduction food and agriculture and water sanitation and energy provide focal lenses through which these challenges are considered Perspectives from new feminist political ecology and economy are integrated alongside issues of rights relations and power The book untangles the complex interactions between different dimensions of gender relations and of sustainability and explores how policy and activism can build synergies between them Finally this book demonstrates how plural pathways are possible underpinned by different narratives about gender and sustainability and how the choices between these are ultimately political This timely book will be of great interest to students scholars practitioners and policy makers working on gender sustainable development development studies and ecological economics Advances in Tea Agronomy M. K. V. Carr, 2018-01-11 Tea is big business After water tea is believed to be the most widely consumed beverage in the world And yet as productivity increases the real price of tea declines while labour costs continue to rise Tea remains a labour intensive industry With a distinguished career spanning over 50 years and rich experience in diverse crops Mike Carr is eminently qualified to indulge in an intelligent discourse on tea agronomy In addition to a comprehensive review of the principal tea growing regions worldwide in terms of structure productivity and principal constraints he has attempted to question and seeks to find the associated experimental evidence needed to support current and future crop management practices The book will assist all those involved in the tea industry to become creative thinkers and to question accepted practices International in content it will appeal to practitioners and students from tea growing countries worldwide
