Crossing The Border Into Old Age The Baby Boomer Challenge:

Crossing the Border Into Old Age Julia Cole Kneissl, Virginia Robins, William Lee Kneissl, Miriam Collier Daigle, 2012-12-01
CROSSING THE BORDER INTO OLD AGE THE BABY BOOMER CHALLENGE BY JULIA COLE KNEISSEL The generational upheavals of our sixty to one hundred year olds will rise significantly as the first wave of baby boomers become eligible for retirement Many retirement issues are addressed and the lifestyles of our older age group will all be affected by the new ideas and energy of our younger members As a former Professor of Gerontology Julia was only partly prepared for her old age She found that books on aging were written by researchers who were not retired yet After fourteen years of retirement Julia now feels qualified to write about the years that are within her experience She has taken a psychosocial approach to the problems and choices of living with an emphasis on redefining oneself as an older person Many men and women have shared their experiences The book offers practical suggestions Yes the baby boomers are entering the zone of old age a zone where we place old people so that we don't have to worry about them Who are these upstarts coming forth with new ideas and high expectations Why are our feathers being ruffled We have grown quite comfortable in our time zone This new generation entering our sacred space will be disassociating themselves from the stigma of aging As people are living longer the numbers celebrating ninety and one hundred year old birthdays are increasing and even more significantly the numbers of men are also increasing but male specific services and activities are lagging far behind Julia encourages you to look outside of the box in viewing aging issues How do you downsize Give up the car Without feeling lost and resentful How can you turn these into positive experiences Are you wealthy enough to retire or too scared to retire What can you expect from your body Is it ok to have a drink of alcohol at night What about your mental abilities are you doomed to have dementias Memory loss How will we decide when it is time to stop driving One of the biggest demands will be that of housing and lifestyles with aging in place being the most popular option It is generally acknowledged that our baby boomers will be working longer so a retirement life style will be at a later age probably not before seventy five The market will be hungry for this generation as the competition for services mounts Demands for apartment living and food service will change Julia writes The youngest amongst us 70's and 80's remember well the wars we waged against established traditions We were part of the one hundred and twenty years that it took for women to gain equal voting rights in this country We picketed Men Only Clubs where business was carried out over leisurely expense paid lunches We were part of the feminist movement even if we did not burn our bras and go to Woodstock We turned the position of the at home Mom who did nothing into the working Mom who did both We saw women crack and transcend the glass ceiling in the work place Have we thought about how we can transcend the glass ceiling of prejudice against the older person We need to start by understanding ourselves who we are collectively but more importantly as individuals If we can learn about the resources available to ourselves and always remember that we raised our children to be self sufficient and independent then we owe it to ourselves and our families to maintain a quality of living which maintains as much independence as our health and financial resources will allow As a retired Professor Emeritus of Gerontology Julia found that most authors were young Julia sees that this new generation will be disassociating themselves from the stigma of aging Julia encourages you to look outside of the box in viewing aging issues How do you downsize Give up the car Prepare for retirement What can you expect from your body What about your mental abilities Budget 2006 Great Britain.

Science Budget Allocations Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Innovation, Universities, Science and Skills Committee, 2008 In the Comprehensive Spending Review CSR 2007 the Science Budget has increased to 11 24 billion the increase from 2007 08 to 2010 11 is 17 5 per cent with a Government commitment to increase the science budget by 2 5 per cent per annum in real terms But the increases do not fully cover Government determined spending commitments such as the requirement for Research Councils to cover 80 per cent of the full economic costs of research and expenditure on new bodies like the Technology Strategy Board The Committee is concerned that the Government has failed to protect the existing and planned research base and has reservations about the influence Government appears to have on the use of the budget and the extent to which the Haldane Principle scientists making the detailed decisions on spending has been upheld The formation of the Science and Technology Facilities Council STFC was untimely and poorly conceived Formed in April 2007 it could not be ready for the 2007 CSR And in merging two Research Councils one research community has been saddled with the debt of another In STFC itself the report finds weaknesses in its peer review system its communications and its management Substantial and urgent changes need to be made to the way in which the Council is run in order to restore confidence and to give the Council the leadership it desperately needs DIUS has a difficult job to do it has to ensure the Research Councils are effective without interfering in how they spend their money The evidence suggests that the Department s performance has been below par in both these areas and it must demonstrate greater effectiveness in the future

Managing an Ageing Workforce Daniel Smentek, 2006-10-12 Inhaltsangabe Abstract Germany s population and consequently its workforce is ageing Fewer young people will enter the workforce and employers will be pressed to draw from an expanding pool of older people As a consequence the working age population is projected to decline significantly while the numbers of organisations depended on them will rise At the same time baby boomers are moving towards retirement and can not be replaced by middle aged or younger workers Facing impending talent shortages and a substantial loss of knowledge and experience companies might have little choice but to implement new employment strategies Primarily based on secondary research and supported by available data from various research institutions this paper considers relevant variables and approaches related to challenges from a German perspective This is done regardless of specific industry conditions and circumstances The paper covers selected peripheral issues like attitudes and retirement intentions of older workers and the myths and stereotypes about them It provides an overview of the German labour market specifically the situation of older people and how public policy has been responding to improve related conditions Finally minor and major interventions are presented to adapt human resource methods work arrangements and framework conditions Recognising that an effective response to the demographic changes requires a broader perspective i e considering all working generations the proposed initiatives primarily focus on the attraction and retention of older people International and more specific German demographic projections clearly indicate that age management is essential Organisations have to be prepared to cope with the impending labour and skill shortages resulting from a declining population and a likely mass exodus of the baby boom generation from the workplace Future competitiveness of businesses increasingly rests on the performance and productivity of older people Hence understanding retaining and utilising them becomes crucial Considering characteristics of the older workforce segment this paper shows that older workers are ready willing and able to stay employed Medical advancements and other quality of life factors lead to people live longer and healthier Myths and stereotypes about older workers are not upheld by available evidence and replaced by convictions to be a valuable resource for employers and capable
