and Reproductive Labor in Interwar and Wartime Britain , Sandra Trudgen Dawson,2024-01-26 Mothers Midwives and Reproductive Labor in Interwar and Wartime Britain is about the experiences of mothers and midwives as they navigated the changing political and social issues surrounding childbirth and motherhood during interwar and wartime Britain The needs and agency of women as mothers and midwives often conflicted with the ideals of the state While government officials understood the importance of safe childbirth to the nation they also chose to allow economic crises and war preparation to take precedence The interwar plans for a national maternal healthcare system met financial constraints and a lack of political will As the outbreak of the Second World War appeared imminent politicians planned for pregnant women and those with small children to evacuate from cities The reception areas were less well planned and pregnant women returned to their homes rather than deliver among strangers Wartime maternity provision didn t take into account the needs and desires of mothers and midwives Reproductive laborers mothers and midwives demonstrated agency throughout the period Pregnant women chose to deliver at home with untrained or trained birth attendants midwives entered and left the profession on their own terms offering or withholding their skills when it suited individual need rather than at the behest of government

Conceiving of and representing mothers without their children seems so paradoxical as to be almost impossible. How can we define a mother in the absence of her child? This compelling volume explores these and other questions from a range of interdisciplinary perspectives, examining experiences, representations, creative manifestations and embodiments of mothers without their children. In her 1997 book entitled Mother Without Child: Contemporary Fiction and the Crisis of Motherhood, the critic Elaine Tuttle Hansen urged for critical and feminist engagement with what she described as the borders of motherhood and the women who really live there, neither fully inside nor fully outside some recognizable family unit and often exiles from their children. This book extends and expands this important enquiry, looking at maternal experience and mothering on the borders of motherhood in different historical and cultural contexts, thereby opening up the way in which we imagine and represent mothers without their children, to reassessment and revision and encouraging further dialogue about what it might mean to mother on the borders of motherhood.

Birth (Pastoring for Life: Theological Wisdom for Ministering Well) James C. Howell, 2020-04-21. This volume explores the connections between our own birth, the experience of having children and the new birth of the Christian life. Seasoned pastor James Howell offers theological perspectives on a variety of themes associated with birth, such as who we are in light of having once lived in utero, why people might have children, infertility, adoption, baptism, and how to make sense of it all in light of God coming to us first in Mary's womb and then as an infant. The book includes paintings, photos and drawings. About the Series: Pastors are called to help people navigate the profound mysteries of being human from birth to death and everything in between. This series, edited by leading pastoral theologian Jason Byassee, provides pastors and pastors in training with rich theological reflection on the various seasons that make up a human life, helping them minister with greater wisdom and joy.
