

plete this course; but they are not regarded as college graduates, or as entitled to a degree.

While every student is advised to enter upon some regular course, he is not required to do this, but may select from the different courses such branches as are regularly taught, due regard being paid to his present attainments, and to the length of time to be spent in study. An eclectic course covering a wide range of study, may thus be pursued; but degrees and certificates are conferred only upon those who satisfactorily complete one of the prescribed courses of study.
