Risk and Resolution R. Greg Brown, 2019-05-20 America repeatedly finds itself mired in military interventions long after public buy in to the national interest has waned Why is the timely disengagement of military forces so difficult to achieve Traditional international relations theories diminish the role of the individual leader in favor of the state or international institutions Behavioral science theories have in recent years experienced a resurgence However the dominant behavioral explanation of foreign policy decision making prospect theory while it focuses on how people tend to make decisions under risk still minimizes the influence of the individual president Decisions to disengage military forces are presidential decisions just like the decisions to commit forces to foreign interventions If we accept this then it is important to understand if and if so why some presidents inherently are more or less acceptant of the risks disengagement presents This book operationalizes a competing personality based model of decision making under risk Referred to here as the trait based model it is assessed using disengagement opportunities in three varied levels of military intervention across four presidencies humanitarian relief turned nation building under George H W Bush and Bill Clinton in Somalia compelling air campaigns turned peace making keeping in Bosnia and Kosovo under Clinton and major combat operations turned irregular warfare in Iraq under George W Bush and Barack Obama Data for the model predominantly comes from existing presidential personality profiles based on the dominant model of personality theory the five factor model augmented by Myers Briggs Type Inventory data from public sources This study aims to explain the roughly 30 percent of cases which defy prospect theory s predictions and to better explain those cases where prospect theory might heretofore have sufficed The results suggest specific personality traits do in fact point to presidents predispositions toward risk which in turn help explain their disengagement decisions This work may be only the second to apply the five factor model to presidential foreign policy decision making and is the first to do so in the context of disengagement decisions Hopefully it will foster further work in both areas

The Missionary Kids Holly Berkley Fletcher, 2025-08-19 Historian Fletcher incisively explores the dark underbelly of American evangelical missionary work via the experiences of missionaries children Robustly researched and sharply analyzed it s an illuminating expos with important implications for evangelical Christianity Publishers Weekly starred review Neither a celebration of missionaries nor a hatchet job this book is insightful and hard hitting while leaving space for a spectrum of voices to be heard Library Journal What do we learn about white evangelicalism from those raised by its heroes From historian Holly Berkley Fletcher herself a missionary kid comes this first of its kind examination of how the experiences of missionary kids illuminate broader currents in American Christianity As sidekicks to their parents and churches ambitions missionary kids MKs face questions many white Christians eventually ask about God s calling sacrifice faith privilege racism abuse and what belonging means In The Missionary Kids Fletcher reveals how MKs have intimate access to the movement s logic longings and ideals With penetrating research sly wit and an empathic gaze Fletcher lays bare complicated emotions and troublesome truths She investigates how calling multiculturalism saints and indispensability can distract white American Christians from their own tradition s sins and failures Drawing on her experience as a Southern Baptist MK in Kenya on conversations with other missionary kids and on the work of psychologists historians missiologists and researchers Fletcher paints an intricate portrait of family life on the front lines of the missionary movement From boarding school to war zones and from sexual assault by adult missionaries to fending for themselves so as not to distract from the work of the Lord MKs bear the weight of their parents choices and their churches ideals Fletcher delves into the missionary industrial complex that shapes the lives of missionary families listening to MKs speak of the vexing wordless longing for the places they ve lived For many years few people sought out MKs real voices God had called their parents to do great things so the kids were beside the point But the children of missionaries are beneficiaries of evangelicalism s rewards and victims of its failings And now they are ready to talk
