The image displays three overlapping book covers for 'Anatomy & Physiology Pacing Guides'. The central cover is the most prominent, showing a detailed table of contents or pacing guide. The table is organized into columns, likely representing different units or topics, and rows representing time periods or lessons. The text within the table is too small to read accurately but appears to include various numerical values and descriptive text. To the right of the central book, there is a small circular logo with the text 'Science 360°'.
