Changing Media Changing China:

Changing Media, Changing China Susan L. Shirk, 2011-01-27 This collection of essays written by pioneering Chinese journalists and Western experts explores how transformations in China's media from a propaganda mouthpiece into an entity that practices watchdog journalism are changing the country. In detailed case studies the authors describe how politicians are reacting to increased scrutiny from the media and how television, newspapers, magazines and Web-based news sites navigate the cross currents between the market and the CCP censors. The Internet, Social Media, and a Changing China

Jacques deLisle, Avery Goldstein, Guobin Yang, 2016-03-08 The Internet and social media are pervasive and transformative forces in contemporary China. Nearly half of China's 1.3 billion citizens use the Internet and tens of millions use Sina Weibo, a platform similar to Twitter or Facebook. Recently Weixin Wechat has become another major form of social media. While these services have allowed regular people to share information and opinions as never before, they also have changed the ways in which the Chinese authorities communicate with the people they rule. China's party state now invests heavily in speaking to Chinese citizens through the Internet and social media as well as controlling the speech that occurs in that space. At the same time, those authorities are wary of the Internet's ability to undermine the ruling party's power, organize dissent or foment disorder. Nevertheless, policy debates and public discourse in China now regularly occur online to an extent unimaginable a decade or two ago, profoundly altering the fabric of China's civil society, legal affairs, internal politics and foreign relations. The Internet, Social Media, and a Changing China explores the changing relationship between China's cyberspace and its society, politics, legal system and foreign relations. The chapters focus on three major policy areas: civil society, the roles of law and the nationalist turn in Chinese foreign policy, and cover topics such as the Internet and authoritarianism, uncivil society, online empowerment through new media, civic engagement and digital activism, regulating speech in the age of the Internet, how the Internet affects public opinion, legal cases and foreign policy, and how new media affects the relationship between Beijing and Chinese people abroad. Contributors: Anne S. Y. Cheung, Rogier Creemers, Jacques deLisle, Avery Goldstein, Peter Gries, Min Jiang, Dalei Jie, Ya Wen, Lei James Reilly, Zengzhi Shi, Derek Steiger, Marina Svensson, Wang Tao, Guobin Yang, Chuanjie Zhang, Daniel Xiaodan Zhou. Political Communication in China Wenfang Tang, Shanto Iyengar, 2013-09-13

It is widely recognised that the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) uses the media to set the agenda for political discourse, propagate official policies, monitor public opinion and rally regime support. State agencies in China control the full spectrum of media programming, either through ownership or the power to regulate. Political Communication in China examines the two factors which have contributed to the rapid development of media infrastructure in China: technology and commercialization. Economic development led to technological advancement which in turn brought about the rapid modernization of all forms of communication, from old media such as television to the Internet, cell phones and satellite communications. This volume examines how these recent developments have affected the relationship between the CCP and the mass media as well as the implications of this evolving relationship for understanding Chinese citizens media use political attitudes and behaviour The chapters in this book represent a diverse range of research methods from surveys content analysis and field interviews to the manipulation of aggregate statistical data The result is a lively debate which creates many opportunities for future research into the fundamental question of convergence between political and media regimes This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal Political Communication China as a Double-Bind Regulatory State Aifang Ma, 2024-03-08 This book explores the dynamics of the Chinese regulation of internet firms Sitting at the crossroad of regulation studies communication studies political economy and the social movements it conceptualises China as a double bind regulatory state defined as a two step autonomy enabling process First the party state s pursuit of competing objectives creates a predicament for regulators In the second step private internet firms consciously exploit regulators predicament to enlarge their maneuvering room The approach of double bind regulatory state challenges some current academic accounts that exaggerate the capacity of the Chinese party state to establish seamless control This book is of interest to scholars of Chinese politics digital law political economy and more Routledge Handbook of Chinese Media Ming-Yeh T. Rawnsley, Yiben Ma, Gary D. Rawnsley, 2015-04-24 The study of Chinese media is a field that is growing and evolving at an exponential rate Not only are the Chinese media a fascinating subject for analysis in their own right but they also offer scholars and students a window to observe multi directional flows of information culture and communications within the contexts of globalization and regionalization Moreover the study of Chinese media provides an invaluable opportunity to test and refine the variety of communications theories that researchers have used to describe analyse compare and contrast systems of communications The Routledge Handbook of Chinese Media is a prestigious reference work providing an overview of the study of Chinese media Gary and Ming Yeh Rawnsley bring together an interdisciplinary perspective with contributions by an international team of renowned scholars on subjects such as television journalism and the internet and social media Locating Chinese media within a regional setting by focusing on Greater China the People s Republic of China Taiwan Hong Kong Macau and overseas Chinese communities the chapters highlight the convergence of media and platforms in the region and emphasise the multi directional and trans national character of media information flows in East Asia Contributing to the growing de westernization of media and communications studies this handbook is an essential and comprehensive reference work for students of all levels and scholars in the fields of Chinese Studies and Media Studies Routledge Handbook of New Media in Asia Larissa Hjorth, Olivia Khoo, 2015-11-06 While a decade ago much of the discussion of new media in Asia was couched in Occidental notions of Asia as a default setting for technology in the future today we are seeing a much more complex picture of contesting new media practices and production As new media becomes increasingly an everyday reality for young and old across Asia through smartphones and associated devices boundaries between art new media and the everyday are transformed This Handbook addresses the historical social cultural political philosophical artistic and economic dimensions of the region's new media Through an interdisciplinary revision of both new media and Asia the contributors provide new insights into the complex and contesting terrains of both notions The Routledge Handbook of New Media in Asia will be the definitive publication for readers interested in comprehending all the various aspects of new media in Asia It provides an authoritative up to date intellectually broad conceptually cutting edge guide to the important aspects of new media in the region as the first point of consultation for researchers advanced level undergraduate and postgraduate students in fields of new media and Asian studies

Documentary, World History, and National Power in the PRC Gotelind Mueller, 2013-10-30 Documentaries have recently become a favourite format for Chinese state directed media to present an officially sanctioned view of history Indeed this is not confined to Chinese national history In stark contrast to the earlier self centred preoccupation with Chinese history there has been an upsurge in interest in foreign history with a view to illuminating China s role not only in world history but also on the global stage today and in the future This book examines three recent Chinese documentary television series which present the officially sanctioned view of the rise of the modern West the reasons for the end of the Soviet Union and the legitimisation of the present day Chinese government via a specific reading of modern Chinese history to argue for a Chinese rise in the future With a focus on these documentaries Gotelind M ller discusses how history is presented on screen and explores the function of visual history for memory culture and wider society Further this book reveals how the presentation of Chinese and foreign history in a global framework impacts on the officially transmitted views on Self and Other and thus provides a keen insight into how the Chinese themselves regard their global rise

Documentary World History and National Power in the PRC will be welcomed by students and scholars working across a number of fields including Chinese studies East Asian studies media studies television studies history and memory studies

Communications in Contemporary China Nicole Talmacs, Altman Yuzhu Peng, 2023-09-01 Using the analogy of an orchestra the book looks at the ways in which the Party state conducts communications in China Rather than treating China s communications system as purely one of centralised top down control this book proffers that it is the combination of the government through its state policies the propaganda bureau s campaigns commercial consumer culture digital and traditional media platforms celebrities entertainers and journalists educators community interest groups and family and friends who all contribute to the evolution of how ideas are perpetuated enforced and legitimised in China Covering themes such as censorship surveillance national narratives onscreen and in everyday life political agency creative work news production and gender politics this book gives an insight into the complex web of conditions objectives and challenges that the Chinese leadership and commercial interests face when orchestrating their visions for the nation s future As such this volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of media and communication studies Chinese politics and Chinese Studies
