Byrappa, 2003-04-17 Crystals are the unacknowledged pillars of modern technology The modern technological developments depend greatly on the availability of suitable single crystals whether it is for lasers semiconductors magnetic devices optical devices superconductors telecommunication etc In spite of great technological advancements in the recent years we are still in the early stage with respect to the growth of several important crystals such as diamond silicon carbide PZT gallium nitride and so on Unless the science of growing these crystals is understood precisely

it is impossible to grow them as large single crystals to be applied in modern industry This book deals with almost all the modern crystal growth techniques that have been adopted including appropriate case studies Since there has been no other book published to cover the subject after the Handbook of Crystal Growth Eds DTJ Hurle published during 1993 1995 this book will fill the existing gap for its readers The book begins with Growth Histories of Mineral Crystals by the most senior expert in this field Professor Ichiro Sunagawa The next chapter reviews recent developments in the theory of crystal growth which is equally important before moving on to actual techniques After the first two fundamental chapters the book covers other topics like the recent progress in quartz growth diamond growth silicon carbide single crystals PZT crystals nonlinear optical crystals solid state laser crystals gemstones high melting oxides like lithium niobates hydroxyapatite GaAs by molecular beam epitaxy superconducting crystals morphology control and more For the first time the crystal growth modeling has been discussed in detail with reference to PZT and SiC crystals

Advances in Crystal Growth Research Y. Furukawa, K. Nakajima, 2001-07-12 The aim of this book is to provide a timely collection that highlights advances in current research of crystal growth ranging from fundamental aspects to current applications involving a wide range of materials This book is published on the basis of lecture texts of the 11th International Summer School on Crystal Growth ISSCG 11 to be held at Doshisha Retreat Center in Shiga Prefecture Japan on July 24 29 2001 This school is always associated with the International Conference of Crystal Growth ICCG series that have been held every three years since 1973 thus this school continues the tradition of the past 10 schools of crystal growth

Crystal Growth Bibliography A. M. Keese, 2012-11-29

Man's first experience with the ordered state of matter to which we now apply the generic term crystals came about when he found specimens of some of the natural crystalline mineral substances that are relatively common in the surface and near surface areas of the earth's crust His first widespread use of these natural materials in which their crystalline nature was of importance was undoubtedly in fabricating jewelry and otherwise adorning his weapons tools and household items Both the Old and New Testaments of the Bible document the use of crystalline gems and the Romans are credited with first employing diamonds a metastable crystalline form of carbon in jewelry Various civilizations appear to have ascribed magical powers to some natural crystals and they are known to have been widely accepted in Europe as having medicinal properties during the Middle Ages Given early man's appreciation of the symmetry and beauty of natural crystals it is not surprising that his earliest interest in working with these materials appears to have been directed toward techniques for duplicating or manufacturing these substances that were so highly valued as gems Although the exact beginning of the science that we now know as crystal growth cannot be precisely specified we do know that Robert Boyle had attempted to grow crystals that could be used as gems prior to 1672 Much later in 1873 M A
