A Citizen's Guide to the Political Psychology of Voting David P. Redlawsk, Michael W. Habegger, 2020-04-06 In the run up to a contentious 2020 presidential election the much maligned American voter may indeed be wondering How did we get here A Citizen's Guide to the Political Psychology of Voting offers a way of thinking about how voters make decisions that provides both hope and concern In many ways voters may be able to effectively process vast amounts of information in order to decide which candidates to vote for in concert with their ideas values and priorities But human limitations in information processing must give us pause While we all might think we want to be rational information processors political psychologists recognize that most of the time we do not have the time or the motivation to do so The question is can voters do a good enough job even if they fail to account for everything during the campaign Evidence suggests that they can but it isn't easy Here Redlawsk and Habegger portray a wide variety of voter styles and approaches from the most motivated and engaged to the farthest removed and disenchanted in vignettes that connect the long tradition of voter survey research to real life voting challenges They explore how voters search for political information and make use of it in evaluating candidates and their positions Ultimately they find that American voters are reasonably competent in making well enough informed vote choices efficiently and responsibly For citizen voters as well as students and scholars these results should encourage regular turnout for elections now and in the future

A Citizen's Guide to Presidential Nominations Wayne P. Steger, 2015-04-10 Presidential nominations in the United States can sometimes seem like a media circus over hyped and overly speculative Even informed citizens might be tempted to tune them out Yet understanding the process one distinct to American politics is crucial for civic participation If presidential elections are about who will lead the nation presidential nominations are about who appears on the ballot This concise and coherent Citizen's Guide examines who has power in presidential nominations and how this affects who we as citizens choose to nominate and ultimately to sit in the Oval Office Political scientist Wayne Steger defines the nominating system as a tension between an insider game and an outsider game He explains how candidates must appeal to a broad spectrum of elected and party officials political activists and aligned groups in order to form a winning coalition within their party which changes over time Either these party insiders unify early behind a candidate effectively deciding the nominee before anyone casts a vote or they are divided and the nomination is determined by citizens voting in the caucuses and primaries Steger portrays how shifts in party unity and the participation of core party constituencies affect the options presented to voters Amidst all this the candidate still matters Primaries with one strong candidate look much different than those with a field of weaker ones By clearly addressing the key issues past and present of presidential nominations Steger's guide will be informative relevant and accessible for students and general readers alike

A Citizen's Guide to Beating Donald Trump David Plouffe, 2020 In a A Citizen's Guide to Beating Donald Trump Plouffe's message is simple the only way change happens especially on scale is one human being talking to another It won't happen magically it won't happen because of debates and conventions it won't happen because of ads It will happen because citizens take action And Plouffe is here to help with specific strategies and tailored talking points to make sure your time and energy aren't wasted He lays out why different activities the average citizen can take can make a difference to getting to 270 electoral votes how people can go about doing them and examples of where it's worked in the past Citizen's Guide to Individual Rights Under the Constitution of the United States of America United States.
