Confessing History Explorations In Christian Faith And The Historians Vocation:

Confessing History John Fea, Jay Green, Eric Miller, 2010-11-15 At the end of his landmark 1994 book The Soul of the American University historian George Marsden asserted that religious faith does indeed have a place in today's academia Marsden's contention sparked a heated debate on the role of religious faith and intellectual scholarship in academic journals and in the mainstream media The contributors to Confessing History Explorations in Christian Faith and the Historian's Vocation expand the discussion about religion's role in education and culture and examine what the relationship between faith and learning means for the academy today The contributors to Confessing History ask how the vocation of historian affects those who are also followers of Christ What implications do Christian faith and practice have for living out one's calling as an historian And to what extent does one's calling as a Christian disciple speak to the nature quality or goals of one's work as scholar teacher adviser writer community member or social commentator Written from several different theological and professional points of view the essays collected in this volume explore the vocation of the historian and its place in both the personal and professional lives of Christian disciples

Why Study History? John Fea, 2013-09-15 What is the purpose of studying history How do we reflect on contemporary life from a historical perspective and can such reflection help us better understand ourselves the world around us and the God we worship and serve In this introductory textbook accomplished historian John Fea shows why Christians should study history how faith is brought to bear on our understanding of the past and how studying the past can help us more effectively love God and others Deep historical thinking can relieve us of our narcissism cultivate humility hospitality and love and transform our lives more fully into the image of Jesus Christ

Was America Founded as a Christian Nation? John Fea, 2011-02-16 Fea offers an even handed primer on whether America was founded to be a Christian nation as many evangelicals assert or a secular state as others contend He approaches the title's question from a historical perspective helping readers see past the emotional rhetoric of today to the recorded facts of our past Readers on both sides of the issues will appreciate that this book occupies a middle ground noting the good points and the less nuanced arguments of both sides and leading us always back to the primary sources that our shared American history comprises

Restoring the Vocation of a Christian College Brad Pardue, Andrew T. Bolger, 2022-05-19 Restoring the Vocation of a Christian College examines the vocation of a Christian institution of higher learning to faithfully educate students and how individual Christian teachers and scholars can participate in this process no matter their discipline It surveys and engages developments over the last few decades in Christian worldview studies Christian pedagogy character formation and vocational reflection Through individual essays by college administrators cocurricular staff and faculty from a wide range of disciplines it provides both thoughtful reflection and concrete application of these often abstract concepts to specific institutional settings and the actual classroom experience theology shapes a Christian historian's reading of the past has been debated thoroughly in various academic periodicals. Should historians recognise the role of providence in their accounts of past events? Should they sympathise with their subject's theology? Can objectivity be lost due to theological bias? And last but not least, is there a compromise of faith if one writes natural instead of supernatural history? Such questions are important for understanding the historian's profession. Arnold Dallimore, who trained and specialised in pastoral ministry in Canada, wrote an influential biography of the revivalist George Whitefield as well as others on Charles and Susanna Wesley, Edward Irving and Charles Spurgeon. How did his Reformed theological perspective impact his historiography? How does his work fit into larger historiographical debates concerning the nature of Christian history? While other books look at Christian historiography using abstract and methodological approaches, this book examines the subject precisely by looking at the life and work of an individual historian. It does so by placing Dallimore in the context of being a minister in twentieth-century Canada as well as his role in the development of Reformed Theology in the Anglosphere. It also examines the quality of his various biographies, focusing on key issues such as the nature of religious revival, the problem of Christianity and slavery, and the question of charismatic religious experience. His study concludes by examining the relationship between the discipline and profession of church history and asking what is required for one to be considered a church historian.

Reformed Evangelicalism and the Search for a Usable Past Ian Hugh Clary, 2020-09-07 The question of how

Bivocational Dr. David F. Felsburg Ph.D., 2018-05-01 Bivocational is about a subset of Christian ministers who range in number from an extremely small minority to a nearly unanimous majority, depending on church or denominational theology and/or policy regarding how they assign ministers to their churches. Part I of the book presents three chapters defining God's call into the ministry, the characteristics of the Gospel ministry, and the unique characteristics of the bivocational ministry. Part II deals with the world of the bivocational minister as it relates to the denomination, the state and local associations, the church leadership, the congregation, other churches, the other job, the community, the family, and the bivocational life.

Reimagining Christian Education Johannes M. Luetz, Tony Dowden, Beverley Norsworthy, 2018-07-04 This book is an arresting interdisciplinary publication on Christian education, comprising works by leading scholars, professionals, and practitioners from around the globe. It focuses on the integrated approaches to Christian education that are both theoretically sound and practically beneficial, and identifies innovative pedagogical methods and tools that have been field-tested and practice-approved. It discusses topics such as exploring programmes and courses through different lenses, learning challenges and opportunities within organisational management, theology of business, Christian models of teaching in different contexts, job preparedness, developing different interpretive or meaning-making frameworks for working with social justice people, people with disability, non-profit community organisations, and in developing country contexts. It offers graduate students, teachers, school administrators, organisational leaders, theologians, researchers, and education practitioners a fresh and inspiring reimagining of Christian education perspectives and practices, and the ramifications of their application to life-long learning.

History Nathan A. Finn, 2016-01-31 A robust understanding of the past has the power to shape our perspective on the present and plans for the future In this introduction to the study of history a historian helps students grasp what it means to examine and explore history from a distinctly Christian perspective In addition to opening students eyes to the riches of the past this readable guidebook models an approach to history that embraces the fundamental beliefs and convictions that make up the Christian worldview Part of the acclaimed Reclaiming the Christian Intellectual Tradition series this volume will be an invaluable tool in the hands of those seeking to engage with the past with God in mind Includes illustrations reflection questions and a list of resources for further study Making

Evangelical History Andrew Atherstone, David Ceri Jones, 2019-04-08 This volume makes a significant contribution to the history of ecclesiastical histories with a fresh analysis of historians of evangelicalism from the eighteenth century to the present It explores the ways in which their scholarly methods and theological agendas shaped their writings Each chapter presents a case study in evangelical historiography Some of the historians and biographers examined here were ministers and missionaries while others were university scholars They are drawn from Anglican Baptist Congregationalist Methodist Presbyterian Fundamentalist and Pentecostal denominations Their histories cover not only transatlantic evangelicalism but also the spread of the movement across China Africa and indeed the whole globe Some wrote for a popular Christian readership emphasising edification and evangelical hagiography others have produced weighty monographs for the academy These case studies shed light on the way the discipline has developed and also the heated controversies over whether one approach to evangelical history is more legitimate than the rest As a result this book will be of considerable interest to historians of religion A Little Book for New Historians Robert Tracy McKenzie, 2019-03-12 Veteran historian Robert

Tracy McKenzie offers a concise clear and beautifully written introduction to the study of history Laying out necessary skills methods and attitudes for historians in training this resource is loaded with concrete examples and insightful principles that show how the study of history when faithfully pursued can shape your heart as well as your mind
