Hans G. Schabel

Coastal Forests Of Eastern Africa:

Coastal Forests of Eastern Africa Neil D. Burgess, G. Philip Clarke, 2000 The eastern African coastal strip contains a tiny chain of patches of lowland tropical dry forest They were previously considered to be of low conservation priority in terms of endemism and species diversity but research since the mid 1980s has shown that their biological richness is comparable to other important tropical forest types in Africa This book defines these Coastal Forests describes the physical environment which influences their formation and summarizes the latest available information on their species diversity and levels of endemism Human impact on these forests is considered against current conservation efforts and needs Finally new proposals are put forward to ensure that the future of these forests is safe Coastal forests of Eastern Africa N. D. Burgess, 2000

Coastal Forests of Eastern Africa Neil D. Burgess, Catharine E. Muir, Society for Environmental Exploration, Chuo Kikuu cha Dar es Salaam, 1994 Forest Entomology in East Africa Hans G. Schabel, 2006-09-13 East African forests among the world's most biologically rich and diverse are subject to multiple pressures including insects As the first work to focus exclusively on East African forest insects this monograph distils 135 years of scientific and historical literature extending from before the colonial era to the present into an authoritative survey of this region's major pests of trees and wood as well as their antagonists This comprehensive treatise also addresses insects of social and economic importance such as endemics edible and collectible insects wild bees and silk producers It should be of great value to foresters entomologists conservation biologists resource managers safari outfitters and anyone else interested in the natural history of this fascinating region

East African Ecosystems and Their Conservation T. R. McClanahan, T. P. Young, 1996 East Africa is one of the most diverse and interesting tropical area on the planet It is home not only to the last great megafaunal assemblage but also to human populations with the highest growth rates This book draws on the expertise of leading ecologists each intimately familiar with a particular set of East African ecosystems to provide the first in depth and integrated account of the ecology management threats and conservation of these diverse ecosystems Summarizing the tremendous wealth of scientific research that has come out of East Africa in the last few decades each chapter analyses a given ecosystem type taking the reader through the basics of its ecology its historical use and misuse by humans and its prospects for conservation Throughout the book linkages and similarities among ecosystems are emphasized the historical and contemporary role of humans in shaping these ecosystems is considered fundamental principles of ecology are considered and interesting case studies are highlighted Students and researchers in ecology conservation biology and environmental sciences will find this book useful in their work

Degraded Forests in Eastern Africa Frans Bongers, Timm Tennigkeit, 2010-09-23 Forest degradation as a result of logging shifting cultivation agriculture and urban development is a major issue throughout the tropics It leads to loss in soil fertility water resources and biodiversity as well as contributes to climate change Efforts are therefore required to try to minimize further degradation and restore tropical forests in a sustainable way This is the first research based book to examine this problem in East Africa The specific focus is on the forests of Ethiopia Tanzania and Uganda but the lessons learned are shown to be applicable to neighbouring countries and others in the tropics A wide range of forest types are covered from dry Miombo forest and afro-montane forests to forest savannah mosaics and wet forest types Current management practices are assessed and examples of good practice presented The role of local people is also emphasized The authors describe improved management and restoration through silviculture plantation forestry and agroforestry leading to improvements in timber production biodiversity conservation and the livelihoods of local people
