Keegan wasn't just an opponent anymore he was the one person who could truly match you who could push you to be better and maybe just maybe he was the one person who knew exactly how to get under your skin Despite the constant bickering there was a strange sort of respect that lingered between you two though neither of you would admit it The tension was thick every encounter charged with electricity But no matter how many times you found yourself locking eyes with him no matter how much you both seemed to want to win you couldn't shake the feeling that maybe just maybe there was something deeper behind all the competition The question now is Will things ever change Will the rivalry continue forever or will the line between rivalry and something more blur in a way neither of you can control Is it just about the competition or is there something else that neither of you is ready to face Madame Récamier Édouard Herriot, 1906
