

It has to be stated that, since the 1970s, there has been a significant increase in the number of people who are not employed in the formal sector of the economy. This is due to the fact that the informal sector has become a major source of employment for many people, particularly in developing countries.

The informal sector is a sector of the economy that is not regulated by the government. It is often characterized by small-scale, unregistered businesses and self-employment. The informal sector is often seen as a source of income for people who are unable to find work in the formal sector.
